Mr. Hoover, explaining Hiram Johnson's big vote in California, says it was due to California's gratitude "because Johnson freed his State from corporation domination."

Wouldn't it be a good idea to let Johnson, as President, free the other forty-seven States from corporation domination?

If you doubt corporation domination, ask yourself a few questions:

Who puts up the price of gasoline?

Who multiplies the price of sugar by six?

Who mismanages railroads with ludicrous incompetency, and has you taxed to foot the bills?

Who supplied patriots at a dollar a year, to take a thousand millions of your money, and spend it on flying machines, giving you no flying machines?

The answer is, corporations.

You might spend your life thinking about news items. Thomas Johnson, at Cork, speaking for the workers of Ireland, says they have "no intention of establishing such a republic as that of America."

This country "isn't free enough, because men and women are sentenced to long terms of imprisonment for daring to say that America is not a land of freedom." You could think a little about that. We thought we were perfect.

The Russian army, and Lenin's government, neatly and entirely exterminated in news dispatches at least once a day, have appeared in Persia, calmly ordering British troops to be withdrawn. If you think that over you conclude that to have a revolution is easier than conquering it.

England, possessing statesmen with brains, will not allow anything to interfere with her oil supplies. No foreigner can own an oil well in the British empire, or control any British oil supply.

Real intelligence there. More of it was shown recently, when a British concern obtained marketing control of the gigantic oil properties in Mexico, owned by Mr. Doheny, the American.

Think about that, asking how it happens that with her brand of statesmen, England controls her oil, and with the American brand, oil controls America?

The S. P. C. A., baseball players and others, find interest in the death of Gallito, a toreador, real name Gomez, ripped open by a bull in Madrid. Gallito might be called the Babe Ruth of Spanish sport, having saved up fifteen hundred thousand dollars, and only twenty-three years old. Civilized men who know the brutality of bull fighting, with its tortured bulls and blindfolded horses ripped open, will send a friendly thought across the water to the bull that buried its horn in Gallito's stomach and ended his money-saving career.

The train robber who stole a hundred thousand dollars, killed one policeman, fought fifty for two hours, and then gave up the ghost, kept a secretary and business manager to look after train robbing enterprises.

The detail astonishes Chicago, but why? Everybody connected with certain management of the New Haven or the Rock Island Railroad had a secretary and business manager. The train robber of Missouri was only a retailer. But why shouldn't he have a secretary like the wholesale railroad robbers?

Superficially frivolous, fundamentally serious, is the cable from Paris about "beauty windows" in women's dresses. These are little diamond-shaped holes, two inches in diameter, let in the backs of ladies' dresses low down, as well as in the ladies' skirts, above the knees.

One lady "had a complete ring of windows all around the waist." The beauty windows, be it understood, go through to the skin.

This isn't exactly new; Lycurgus, making laws for Sparta nearly three thousand years ago, ordered young women, unmarried, to wear skirts split all the way from the waist down on both sides, so as to give freedom in running, and also to make it worth while to develop straight, well-shaped legs.

There was common sense and purpose in the Spartan dress.

Young men and women ran entirely naked with no immodesty in public roads. Everything depends on the intentions. The Venus Accroupie in marble, completely undressed, looks as modest and virtuous as any flower. But if you put on her a hat with an ostrich feather and a pair of stockings she would also look like the Paris models with their beauty windows.

SLASHING OF RETAIL PRICES SPREADS

25 to 50 Per Cent. Reductions as Grain and Meat Go Down

A spontaneous and apparently unorganized slashing of retail prices is under way today in most of the principal cities of the country, according to reports gathered by the Boston American.

This cut-price movement is noticeable in nearly every line of merchantile business and is particularly marked in the clothing and dry goods business. Twenty-five per cent. is the average reduction although in some instances it runs as high as fifty per cent.

Suits of men's clothing which a month ago were selling for $60, $65, and $75 are now procurable in many leading stores over the country for $40 and $50. Values of silk goods have also shrunk considerably.

Food prices while slower to come down, range generally lower today than in weeks. In Chicago meat on the hoof is considerably lower and there has been a general decline in prices for all classes of grain. Wheat sold from 2 to 4 cents lower and rye was off from 5 to 7 cents.

The decline in grain prices is not yet noticeable in the flour and bread trade, but dealers declared today lower prices in these commodities were bound to come within a week.

Reports from all cities indicate that the general price slashing is accompanied by a heavy advertising campaign in the newspapers.

Various reasons are assigned for the movement, chief among which

SACCO ARRAIGNED IN BRAINTREE MURDERS

Nick Sacco of South Stoughton was arraigned in Quincy court today charged with murder in connection with the double killing in the South Braintree payroll robbery of April 15. The case was continued one week. It was announced that Bert Vanzetti, the other suspect arrested following the South Braintree shooting, would probably be charged with murder. The news came as a surprise, as it had been supposed he had cleared himself of connection with that affair. Vanzetti is now held without bail charged with the attempted robbery of the L. Q. White payroll in Bridgewater in December.

SUGAR ADVANCES TO 26 CENTS IN SOUTH BOSTON

The retail price of sugar was advanced one cent a pound today in South Boston. Until yesterday, sugar had been selling in the chain stores for twenty-two cents. Find 500 Quarts on Ice, Packed With Fish

St. Albans, Vt., May 19.—The most expensive fishing ever tried in this locality was staged Tuesday when customs officials took seventeen barrels of "fish" taken from a train. Today the barrels were opened and after removing about a dozen fish packed in ice and sawdust the officials began taking out quart bottles of whiskey. They found about 500 bottles in all.

The shipment was addressed to the W. M. Green City Fish Co., Elliot street, Boston, Mass.

CONVENTION DELEGATES OFF TO COAST JUNE 20

Arriving there at 7 on Wednesday, they leave at 10 o'clock for Salt Lake City, where they arrive at 12:25 the next day. At Salt Lake City the delegation splits, temporarily, and while one section proceeds direct to San Francisco, the other advances by easy stages. Saturday night at 11:10 they leave Santa Barbara for San Francisco, arriving Sunday morning at 10:15.

"HINDOO CONSPIRACY" CASES ARE DROPPED

Washington, May 19.—The wind-up of the famous "Hindoo conspiracy," which took place in San Francisco in 1918, occurred when the Department of Labor cancelled warrants of deportation in the cases of the three men alleged to be the principals in a movement to start an armed revolution against the British Indian government.

ROBBED BOSTON BANK

Oscar Jesseman, Who Stole $20,000 From Old Colony, Dies on Train

Oscar Jesseman, Old Colony Trust Company bank messenger, who disappeared on January 14, taking with him $20,000 in $1,000 bills, the property of the bank, is dead in Rawlings, Wyo. He died on a train between Denver, Col., and Kansas City.

Jesseman had $10,000 in his possession when removed from the train. In addition, there was a miscellaneous lot of jewelry, which the authorities believe was purchased with part of the $20,000 stolen from the bank.

Jesseman was returning East from a visit to a relative in Los Angeles. He went from that city to San Francisco and there took a Union Pacific train for Chicago, where, it is believed, he intended to meet Frank Tymme, his companion and the man regarded as the "master mind" in the trust company robbery.

TWO WITH JESSEMAN.

Pinkerton operatives in Rawlings, Wyo., and Denver, Col., working under instructions from Assistant Superintendent Harry J. Murray, reported today that while there were two men on the train who knew Jesseman, neither was Tymme. The hunt for him is being vigorously pushed in several Western cities.

While nothing definite has been learned regarding the circumstances attending Jesseman's death, it is believed that habitual use of drugs ac-

Pastor Who Refused Raise Made Bishop

Rev. Fred B. Fisher, just elected a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is remembered in Boston as the clergyman who refused a raise in salary, on the ground that the money could be more profitably spent in mission work in the West End.

Dr. Fisher was pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church on Temple street thirteen years ago.

He defeated a project for increasing his salary from $2,100 to $2,800.

Dr. Fisher has been in Indiana recently. He was elected at the M. E. Church convention in Des Moines, Ia.

BONUS OPPOSED BY TWO POSTS

Units at Milton and Newton Throw Bombshell Into Legion Ranks

A bomb shell was thrown into the American Legion's campaign for a dollar and a quarter a day bonus for war service when it was announced today that the Milton Post, No. 114, had unanimously voted against the measure.

This action follows a similar vote by the Newton legion and the charges recently made by Joseph B. Choate, commander of Southboro Post, that Colonel Edward L. Logan, the State commander, was "playing politics" in an attempt to procure the bonus.

Choate's expulsion from the Legion for "disrespect and disobedience," was only saved through Colonel Logan, who pleaded in behalf of the member who had assailed him. A vote of censure was passed and further investigation of the matter is in the hands of a special committee which is expected to report on the matter May 26.

Dr. Walter A. Lane, commander of the Milton Post, today explained why the members of his organization voted down the bonus plan.

"The American Legion should not enter politics," he said. "Playing politics to put through the bonus plan is a disgrace to the uniform. The country cannot stand it.

"The men who enlisted in the war did so for one thing alone—patriotism. A bonus at this time means nothing more than the commercialization of patriotism. When the legion members see the question put to them in the right light they will take the same stand that the Milton post did. Naturally the young men can use the dollar and a quarter a day; it is easy money.

"The acceptance of this money means a great depreciation in the value of Liberty bonds. The returned soldier and sailor who is today in good health does not need a bonus. Those that are not in good health will be taken care of.

"If Congress wants to give us this money that is all right, but we should not go looking for it. At the convention in Minneapolis it was unanimously agreed that we should not ask Congress for anything."

UNITARIANS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN ON MAY 23

"To spread the message of Unitarian Christianity," May 23 to 28 has been set aside for special work by Unitarian laymen and clergy. Plans will be formulated to make known to all the country how the principles of the Unitarian faith fit into the conditions of today. Former President Taft has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the committee, and Ernest G. Adams of Boston has been chosen temporary chairman.

Forty-five autoists, charged with breaking ordinances and traffic rules, appeared before Judge Ahern in Roxbury Court today. The fines aggregated $160.

House Had New Owner Every 12 Hours

The most glaring example of real estate speculation that has yet come before the Mayor's Committee on Rents and Housing was revealed today in the case of a property which changed hands four times within forty-eight hours.

The property is at No. 11 Westminster road, Roxbury, and has changed hands eleven times in as many months, according to the committee.

Isaac Bachrach, present owner of the property, was before the committee for the seventh time for alleged profiteering. He was summoned because of alleged breach of faith with that body, and was characterized by Adjuster Herbert E. Ellis as a persistent violator of his promises."

It was from Bachrach's testimony, mostly, that the story of the changes in ownership of the house on Westminster road was pieced together. Some of the recent owners he did not even know.

Much of the time at today's hearing was given over to an effort to find out what equities Bachrach had in the house in Westminster road and in a house at No. 15 Walnut Park road, Roxbury.

Saul Andrews, living at the latter address, was the complainant. After considerable testimony had been taken, the committee adjourned the case until next Monday, when Bachrach will make his eighth appearance.

Siegel pleaded guilty in Municipal Court, but Judge Creed suggested that he withdraw his plea until the extent of the child's injuries had been determined.

3 GET AWAY IN RAIN OF BULLETS

Quick Action on Part of Boston Officer Breaks Up Auto Abduction

One man was wounded and six shots were exchanged between two police officers early today when five men in an automobile attempted to abduct Miss Katherine Lenell, eighteen, of No. 49 Brackett street, Brighton, as she alighted from a trolley car at Oak square.

Unknown to the young woman her uncle, Patrolman Stephen F. Sullivan of Station 16, Back Bay, left the electric at the same point. He was dressed in plain clothes.

As Miss Lenell stepped to the road, the automobile which, according to her, had been following her from Boston, stopped and two of the men jumped out and grabbed her.

Her screams attracted her uncle, who, not knowing it was his niece, rushed to her assistance. A blow from the butt of a revolver in the hands of one of Miss Lenell's captors felled and stunned the officer.

Releasing the girl the men rushed for the machine shouting, "Start her, get going."

Having regained his feet, Officer Sullivan drew his gun and fired at the fleeing men, dropping one of them just as he was mounting the running board of the machine. Eager hands reached out and caught him as

TELLS COURT OF THREAT AGAINST HIS LIFE

Providence, May 19.—Joseph Imondi, government witness in the prosecution of alleged freight thieves, startled the Federal Court today when he testified that his life had been threatened almost within the hearing of the presiding justice. Mayor's Trip Surprise to Long Island

Mayor Peters paid a surprise visit to Long Island for the first time during his administration, to see whether conditions complained of in the recent influenza epidemic, which cost more than forty lives, had been improved. He was accompanied by the infirmary trustees.

After observations and talks with many of the inmates, the Mayor said he was satisfied that conditions were greatly improved. The entire plant, he said is run down, but it is questionable whether more money ought to be spent upon it in view of the possibility of transferring the institution to the mainland.

The presence of Warden Elmer E. D. Shattuck of the State Prison was looked upon as significant in view of rumors that the State will take over the island should the city abandon it.

ATTITUDE OF GIRL IS DEFIANT

Miss Zimmerman Engages in Verban Battle With District Attorney

Springfield, May 19.—Spurred to anger by merciless questioning of District Attorney Wright, Jennie G. Zimmerman, on trial for the murder of Dr. Henry Zimmerman, heatedly denied today she was trying to change her testimony in order to save herself.

Leaning forward in her seat, with eyes blazing, the young woman shook a finger at the prosecutor and cried: "Why should I try to save myself? When I get through with you, you'll know."

Later she was roused almost to fury by a question as to whether she had ever had relations with any man but Dr. Zimmerman, and her "No" snapped through the courtroom like the crack of a whip.

The pitiless grilling of the District Attorney seemed to act as a stimulant to the young woman, who fought savagely back, in direct contrast to her fainting condition while relating the story of her betrayal.

The first clash occurred when the defendant was again questioned regarding an envelope said to have contained medicine, dated May 13, which she identified yesterday. At that time Miss Zimmerman said that this envelope was received in 1918 and that she had been operated on two weeks later.

Today the young woman said that her memory of events was clearer and that the operation took place some time in April or May. Dr. Zimmerman entered the service on May 20.

It was then that District Attorney Wright asked if the defendant were trying to change her testimony.

Asked if someone else had performed this operation, the defendant replied: "It was Dr. Zimmerman who did it in his own office. He came and

(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.

Bad Streets Lower the City's Wealth and Reputation

From every point of view it is false economy to let the streets get into disrepair. It makes it cost a great deal more when the streets are repaired than is saved now. It shortens the life of the streets and increases the obsolescence and the maintenance charges.

But more than that, it decreases general values in the city; it disgusts the strangers within our gates; it reduces the value of real estate on an ill-kept street; it reduces the life of a car, automobiles and other vehicles which have to travel over such streets and the money cost of the destructiveness of a bad street to automobiles and wagons is very great indeed.

There is no worse example of penny wisdom and pound folly than the postponing of proper maintenance work on our streets.

The citizens of West Roxbury ought to be joined by the citizens all over the city in protest against this condition. If Mayor Peters really felt that the citizens were behind him in an effort to improve our streets and would not grouch at the cost, we are confident that he would do his utmost to improve them.

Wages of the State Employes Should Be Increased

State employes have presented petitions for raises in pay and for bonuses. Either would be acceptable to them.

It always was and always ought to be the working principle of our American Governments that the Governments should be the ideal employers, setting standards which other employers in private business should be inspired to emulate.

Now, the power of the labor organizations, and the scarcity of labor, has enabled the workman to increase his pay out of all proportion to the increase which those in the public service have been able to obtain. There can be no doubt that the State employes have made out a conclusive case in favor of increasing their wages. It is little satisfaction to them, and it little accords with justice, to have State Supervisor White tell them that if they have been in the service ten years they ought to get out. Rather should he tell them they should stay in if they are good men and women. The State ought to be the most important service of all.

No man ought to be too good for the public service. If he is good in private service he ought to be better employed in the public service.

Johnson's Promises Based on Past Performances

Mr. Hoover uttered a great truth about Senator Johnson and his character and achievements as a public servant when he explained why the people of California gave Senator Johnson such an overwhelming endorsement in his candidacy for the Republican nomination for President against Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Hoover says that Senator Johnson won so decisively and almost so unanimously, because the pepole of California felt a sense of loyalty for him on account of the splendid service which he rendered to them when he freed their State from corporation control as Governor of California.

Is there any other candidate for any party today concerning whom any responsible citizen can say as much as Mr. Hoover felt obliged to say concerning Senator Johnson's public record? Has there been any man nominated for President on either the Democratic or Republican ticket since the Civil War concerning whom a responsible citizen has ever made such a declaration?

"He freed his State from corporation domination." Corporation domination is an American idiomatic expression for the dominance of special privelege, the reign of highly organized and highly financed greed. It is the negation of democracy. It represents a political condition worse than an autocracy, because plutocracy is ninety-nine times out of a hundred worse than autocracy. It is more vulgar, less responsible, more brutal and more unmoral.

Autocracy has generally a standard of its own to which it conforms. It has generally a sense of responsibility which it respects. But a plutocracy has not a single virtue, and it was a plutocracy, headed by the Southern Pacific Railroad, which the Hearst newspapers in California have fought since they first came into existence, that Governor Johnson led in the task of driving from political power. The cleaning of the Augean stables was not a greater task, and Hercules in mythology did not perform it more effectively than Johnson in real life, within a few years, cleaned out California of a corrupt plutocracy.

What kind of a man do the American people need most today? What ails America most? What influences are behind the violations of the constitutional rights of free speech, free press and free peaceable assembly? How much are the necessaries of life artificially increased by unlawful conspiracies?

Whom do we need most for President, the candidates who are being financed by the interests Johnson drove out of California, or Johnson, who successfully opposed, routed and scattered and completely drove from power the forces that beset this country today, and whose tentacles reach into every State as they reached into California.

Senator Johnson is the first candidate for a generation whose promises are actually based on a record of performance.

More Truth Than Poetry

It Was a Mere Guess Then

By S. E. KISER

MANY changes have been wrought
Since our grandpas learned to woo.
Being in love's meshes caught
Doubtless feeling reckless, too.
Their delights were few and small,
That is, measured by our own;
They were never known to call
Ladies up by telephone;
Furthermore, they had to guess,
And in guessing be discreet,
For in their day woman's dress
Covered her from neck to feet.

WHEN our grandpas loved and sighed,
As enchanted lovers will,
They had little cause for pride,
And their tastes were simple still;
They were not inclined to flash
Money where the crowds could see;
They were stingy with their cash,
For, in truth, they had to be;
They could never tantalize
Lovely maidens hugged behind
Taxi drivers who were wise
And discreet and deaf and blind.

THERE was much they missed, alack!
Neither your grandsire nor mine
Ever saw his darling's back
Bared below the Dixie line.
He could guess that she was blessed
With a pair of useful knees,
But the style in which she dressed
Plagued him with uncertainties.
Not allowed to touch or look,
Men had courage in those days;
For the chances that they took
Let us give them grateful praise.

CAUSE OF ELECTRIC LIGHT IN VACUUM

By Garrett P. Serviss

"As far as my elementary knowledge goes, I am unable to account for the following: If oxygen has to be present as the combustion agent for any light, heat or fire, why does the electric filament lamp give heat and light in a vacuum? J. S."

BECAUSE it is not combustion of the filament that produces the light, but electric resistance opposing the flow of the current of electrons through the filament. This resistance may be compared to friction, and, like friction, it produces heat.

On the other hand, combustion or burning, such as that of coal, or of a candle, is a case of chemical combination, and results in disintegration of the substance subjected to it, with evolution of heat, generally accompanied by the production of flame.

Another name for combustion is oxidation, since it consists in the chemical combination of oxygen with the carbon and other elements composing the substance burned. The products of this chemical combination are called oxides. After combustion the substance that has been subjected to this process no longer exists in its former state. It has been separated into smoke, vapor, gases and ashes.

In contrast to this, the substance of an electric lamp filament retains its shape and properties, and does not burn away while giving out heat and light. However, some combustion, or oxidation, occurs when an electric arc light is formed between carbon points, because the oxygen of the air is present around the glowing points, and unites with the carbon, thus consuming, or burning, it.

To prevent this wasting away of the carbons, they are enclosed so as to prevent free access of the air, and it is found that the carbons in enclosed arc lamps last twenty times as long as those that are not enclosed.

Even the filaments of ordinary electric lamps suffer slightly from oxidation if the bulbs are not thoroughly exhausted, and tungsten, whose high electric resistance makes it the best material for filaments, has so strong an affinity for oxygen that particular care must be exercised in excluding, as far as possible, the least trace of air from the bulbs.

Letters to the Editor

Building a "Nest"

Editor Boston American:

There are several million homeless people in this country. With the desire in their hearts for their own little homes, they are in a worse position than the birds, who are still able to build their own nests.

There are many more million people who may be homeless tomorrow—or next week—or next year, unless profiteering landlords are curbed, or put in jail.

There are millions of engaged couples, postponing the happy day, because they want a home of their own to go into instead of a tenement that they might afford, or an apartment that they cannot afford. They have visions of "love in a cottage," but H. C. L. appears as an insurmountable object. But there is a way—simple—and possible.

Let the State or the nation exempt from taxation all homes (with the emphasis on "homes") purchased or secured through a building or loan association or co-operative bank.

This will make home building easier. It will establish a definite schedule of payments for the participants—and it will stop profiteering.

Retail Merchants

Editor Boston American:

Permit me to say that I think you said the right thing and the truth in your editorial, "Have sympathy for Honest Retail Merchants," appearing in your paper of May 15. More editorials of this kind on this subject would tend to educate the buying public to lay the blame where the blame belongs, and exonerate the poor retailer from all the unjust criticism constantly lodged against him. I say this, not as a retailer, but as a student in practical economics.

COURAGE IS RENEWED THROUGH VISION

By Winifred Black

IT had been a hard day, the woman said, a day full of little worries and petty annoyances—and at the end of it, three letters.

One about the income tax, and her heart sank.

One about a property tax, and her soul shivered.

And one a bill from the grocer's, and she turned sick at heart.

Oh, yes, she had the money to pay these bills, or at least she could have it if she schemed and planned, and turned and twisted, and economized and gave up enough.

But in the end—what of it?

What did she get for all her work and all her worry and all her trials and all her tribulation? Nothing but more worry and more work and more trials and more tribulation.

Her children were growing up, fine, healthy, loyal, devoted children, if ever there were any, but the eldest was married and gone, and she couldn't lean on him any longer for counsel and comfort. His shoulders were burdened with as much as he could bear.

Trials and Tribulations

And the two youngsters were having trouble in school.

And the dinner wasn't very good that night, and after dinner two bores came to call, and one bore told all about his symptoms when he had the flu, and the other told about the trouble she was having with her cook, and they all talked about the high cost of living, and wondered what they'd do if rents went up higher, and——

When the woman went to bed she couldn't sleep at first.

And when she did sleep she dreamed of debt collectors and landlords and grocerymen as big as a house and teeth like wolves and bright and terrible eyes—and she woke up and cried a little. Then she went to sleep, and when she woke it was as if some one had come and had laid a gentle hand upon her forehead—and in her heart was ringing the refrain from the song they sang in church at Easter time:

"Consider the lilies, how they grow."

"Why, so they do!" said the woman. "So they do, the dear things. They're growing somewhere right this minute, I suppose."

"They toil not, neither do they spin."

"Why, so they don't," said the woman. "They don't do a thing."

"And yet Solomon, in all his glory——"

"Solomon," said the woman softly to herself. "In all his glory——"

"Was not arrayed like one of these."

New-Born Lily

And upon her inward eye there shone the beauty of a new-born lily, fair and fragrant in a garden of green.

So sweet and tall and white it was—the lily. So slender, so graceful and so delicate, and yet what a courage it had to push its way up through the dark earth—all alone. What faith!

"Consider the lilies, how they grow"—over and over the woman said the comforting words, and somehow, in the soft gray of the early morning some one she knew long, long ago—some one loved deep and dear, and not forgotten—oh, never forgotten for one moment—never, never—seemed to smile.

And the woman felt that she was not alone any more, and she rose and dressed herself and faced her little day with courage, with fortitude and with cheerful faith.

So out of the darkness comes sometimes to those who travail comfort and surcease from sorrow.

MISS ZIMMERMAN SPURRED TO ANGER BY SEVERE GRILLING

ACCUSED GIRL CLASHES WITH DISTRICT ATTORNEY

attended me later at my house and I lay on a couch in my home for two weeks afterward."

She declared that she would not lie about the man she loved, and when the District Attorney asked: "Not even to save yourself?" she said: "Why should I save myself?"

The defendant then pointed out to the district attorney that in the last part of the first letter written her by Captain Zimmerman from Camp Gordon, he inquired for her health. She said that he came to see her on the Friday morning and Saturday before leaving for camp, but that he would not allow her to go to the station when he left.

Asked how she could love Dr. Zimmerman after his treatment of her, the defendant replied:

"It was not the way he treated me that counted, but his promises to marry me I was anxious about.

The young woman was then questioned regarding a visit to Dr. Naurison, the former family physician, in January of 1919, and his refusal to operate upon her. This was the time when Dr. Zimmerman was home on leave. She testified that two years previously she had informed Dr. Naurison of her relations with Dr. Zimmerman.

The girl denied telling Dr. Zimmerman that she would shoot him if he did not marry her.

She testified that she began to love Dr. Zimmerman a month or two after his betrayal of her.

She said that she had never complained of his treatment of her to any other person, from 1915 to 1917, because the doctor told her not to tell anyone what had occurred.

The young woman added that he said he was sorry and promised to marry her, and for that reason she was willing to give the doctor an opportunity to save her name.

Asked if she loved Dr. Zimmerman immediately after the occurrence in his office in 1915, the young woman replied: "How could I?"

The defendant also indignantly denied that she had ever contemplated marrying any other man, declaring that it would have been impossible after what had taken place.

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Wright, Miss Zimmerman declared that she could not remember anything connected with the shooting. She stated that at the time she was undergoing a period of depression due to her physical condition.

She testified that she first regained full power over her faculties a few days afterwards. She could not tell whether it was two days, five days or more. She said that when she came to a full realization of what had happened she was ill.

"Did you at any time think that you were insane?" she was asked by the prosecutor.

"Yes," she answered. "I was often despondent a good many times after my first intimacy with Dr. Zimmerman. I was afraid that he would carry out his threat to send me to Northampton. I thought that he had a right to order me away."

Q.—What were the symptoms that led you to believe you were insane? A.—I had several fainting spells and fits of depression. I had one of these spells a few days prior to the shooting.

Miss Zimmerman broke down and cried during her examination as to the circumstances surrounding the time that she alleges Dr. Zimmerman first attacked her in his office.

She stated that she could not exactly state the date of the attack. To the best of her knowledge, it was around Thanksgiving Day, 1915. She again was forced to tell, in faltering voice and with tears streaming down her face, the happenings on that day which the accused girl says was the first incident in her betrayal.

Asked to describe the drink she alleges Dr. Zimmerman gave her before he attacked her, she said that it was bitter and that after she drank it she became dizzy. She finally became unconscious, she said.

With the end of her ordeal in sight, Jennie faced with composure the continued verbal fusillade of District Attorney Wright, who resumed cross-examination at the opening of court.

After her cross-examination more witnesses for the defence will be heard, with the alienists taking the stand last.

There was a possibility, it was stated, that final arguments might be concluded this week, and the case given to the jury by Saturday.

ATTORNEYS IN TILT.

Miss Zimmerman became aroused when the district attorney sought to implicate her in three operations, to which she testified she had submitted. "If Dr. Zimmerman were here to speak he would tell you the same thing," she said.

"Then you punished him severely enough, didn't you?" said the district attorney.

"Oh, no, I was the one who was punished," she answered.

The questions continued as follows:

Q.—Then he deserved what he got, did he? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Oh, he didn't deserve what you did to him then? A.—He didn't deserve what happened.

Q.—Then you say you didn't shoot him? A.—I didn't say I didn't do it.

Q.—Was it an accident? A.—I don't know. I am only telling you what I do know.

Q.—Was it in self-defence? A.—Yes, I was trying to defend myself.

Q.—Then you knew what you were doing? A.—Yes, when I saw what he was doing.

A tilt occurred between the District-Attorney and Attorney McKechnie of the defense when the latter accused the District-Attorney of putting unfair questions to his client.

TELLS OF LOANS.

Miss Zimmerman was questioned relative to the money which she claims she loaned her cousin at various times.

Q.—The doctor could have got the money on a note the same way as you did, couldn't he? A.—If he could have I don't see why he should have come to me for it.

Q.—Why did you get it for him? A.—He asked me, for it. He needed it for rent, to pay his bills and because he was short of cash.

Because they are unable to procure a telephone in their office in Town Hall, the Canton assessors have requested the Selectmen to force the telephone company to remove its ground cables from the town's water mains. Doctor's Love Still Sacred to Girl Who Killed Him

Springfield, May 19.—

"For each man kills the thing he loves,
By all let this be heard.
Some do it with a bitter look,
Some with a flattering word;
The coward does it with a kiss,
The brave man with a sword."
—The ballad of Reading Gaol.

Jennie Zimmerman, confessed slayer of the man she loved, on trial here for the shooting to death of her cousin, Dr. Henry Zimmerman, on the witness stand today reiterated her deep attachment to the man who repeatedly wronged her.

Under a cross-examination by District-Attorney Wright so severe that spectators were deeply stirred, the girl told and retold the story of her bitter humiliation and exposed the most intimate details of her life before a court room filled with men and women.

GOADED TO PROTEST.

The hearing was punctuated with moments when the defendant, goaded to indignation or protest, leaned forward and gesticulated in her earnestness. Again she made an excellent witness, astonishing those who had seen her crushed and weeping under the kindly questions of her own counsel. All attempts on the part of the prosecution to lead her to say that she had killed her lover through revenge, had had other lovers, or had been attended illegally by other physicians, signally failed.

Perhaps the most striking moment of the morning session was when she sat straight up in her chair, her gentle voice firm, her eyes leveled directly upon her questioner, and said:

"How could I marry any other man after what Dr. Zimmerman had done to me?"

Questions framed purposely to mislead her had only the effect of bracing the little defendant's courage and evoking her indignation. Especially did she show resentment when Attorney Wright, through various approaches, endeavored to obtain from her an admission that she had had other lovers.

LOVE STILL SACRED.

To Jennie her love for he cousin who took her by violence, denied her the fulfilment of motherhood, and finally repudiated her after repeated promises of marriage, still is a sacred thing. Not abandonment or death could kill it. There was a dignity in the fragile figure and pale features every time she avowed it. At these moments her drooping bearing revived and humiliation seemed to fall from hr, as a cast off garmnt.

Only when a question stirred some tender memory, reawakened her sorrow, did her head droop again and the tears fall. She wept when she told of Dr. Zimmerman's leaving for camp after being drafted into military service, and how he told her not to see him off because he did not wish his family to see her.

"What! You didn't go to the station to see him off?" Attorney Wright had exclaimed in a tone of reproachful surprise.

"I did not—and do you know why?" the girl cried sharply. "Because he told me not to come. Because he said that his mother and sisters were going to be there and he didn't want them to see me."

MEMORY IS PAINFUL.

Down went the weary head on the thin hands and the girl's shoulders heaved convulsively at the momery of that cruel insult to her affection.

The grilling was one of the most severe ever known in the trial of a woman defendant. The district attorney probed mercilessly into every mystery of a woman's psychology. He made her tell again of the scene of her first subjugation, a memory which the girl told him she had been years vainly trying to forget.

He made her rehearse once more, not only her emotions at the time, but the material details—the position of furniture in the room, the appearance of the operating table, whether the windows were open or closed.

He pinned her ruthlessly to fix definite dates, and mercilessly attacked replies which she assured him were only "guessing."

She was made to live again the dark hours in which her dawning motherhood was blighted; to describe the process during those sad visits to the doctor's office; to reiterate how she protested against them, and entreated her lover to marry her and let nature fulfil her purpose, how the man denied her, and killed the little life she begged to keep, and sent her home.

STANDS ORDEAL BRAVELY.

And bravely did Jennie stand the ordeal. Admitting that she found it difficult to recall dates, she declined to become confused. At last, when the district attorney in an attempt to discredit one of her statements, asked "Are you sure you are not trying to shift that date?" she replied indignantly. "Why should I try to shift it? That would be lying," and a little later, "You can verify it by asking his sister."

"Oh, we can verify it better than you think," replied the District Attorney. "And we shall do so."

Was the witness confused? Far from it.

"I hope so!" she exclaimed, fervently.

Pawtucket, R. I., May 19.—All the thrills of a moving picture were experienced by persons who saw the rescuing of a little boy from the path of the Shore Line express from Boston at Central Falls. The speeding train was but 100 yards away, coming around a curve, when two men saw the situation and saved the boy.

are the congested condition of the railroads and a tightening of credit all along the line. Merchants having large stocks are desirous of getting more cash assets and the quickest method of doing this is decreasing stocks via the sales route.

BARGAINS IN PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, May 19.—Prices of clothing, shoes and general merchandise are being reduced by all leading merchants of Philadelphia, the cuts ranging from 20 to 35 per cent. Newspapers of the city are carrying full pages of display advertising daily, this policy being in marked contrast with routine advertising by the same merchants a month ago.

The drive of the retailers to increase sales of their stocks, leads the consumer to believe the attitude of "patch'em and wear'em" is having the desired effect.

PITTSBURGH BENEFITED.

Pittsburgh, May 19.—A few of the leading stores have announced twenty per cent. reduction in clothing, but there has been no general slashing of prices in Pittsburgh. Outside of some cuts of meats, the cost of foodstuffs has been steadily advancing.

BIG CUTS ON COAST.

San Francisco, May 19.—An epidemic of price cutting was in vogue in San Francisco stores today. Several leading stores announced flat price reductions of 20 per cent. on their entire stocks. Shoe sales at discounts of from 10 to 40 per cent. were announced.

CHICAGO HOLDING BACK.

Chicago, May 19.—Chicago had not joined today in the general wave of price cutting which is noticeable in most of the cities in the country. Clothing dealers said that prices in Chicago had been lower than in other parts of the country for months and that if prices were reduced now it would indicate profiteering or selling below cost.

FOOD HIGHER IN DETROIT.

Detroit, May 19.—No manifestation of a cut in prices for either clothing or foodstuffs is in evidence here. The trend of food prices, on the other hand, is upward, due to the freight congestion.

CAPITAL HOLDS BACK.

Washington, May 19.—The National capital has been slow to respond to any movement for price reductions, despite attacks in Congress on profiteering. A few of the larger merchants have held their sales earlier than usual and some of the clothing merchants have been forced to reduce prices in order to secure extended credit. The price of bread has just been raised from 8 cents to 10 cents a loaf, and other food commodities are striving to hold the level reached during the railroad strikes several weeks ago.

HIGHER IN CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, May 19.—Price reductions in clothing and foodstuffs reported from some parts of the country are not evident here. To the contrary hotel and restaurant owners declare that since the transportation congestion owing to the rail strike prices in foodstuffs have made a general increase of approximately 15 per cent.

BANK THIEF IS DEAD IN THE WEST

complished it. The police learned sometime ago that the young man ate lumps of sugar on which chloroform and ether had been spread.

It develops now that Tymme, in all probability, was the directing genius while Jesseman was but clay in his hands. Tymme was in Boston about a week before the robbery. He came East from Chicago and went to [illegible] with Jesseman. He secured a position in a downtown branch of a chain store system.

IN $1,000 BILLS.

On the day of the theft Tymme and Jesseman walked from the Back Bay to their places of employment. At 11 o'clock on the morning of January [illegible] Jesseman went from the bank with $20,000 in bills of $1,000 denomination. It was intended that he go to the post office, register the package and ship it to a client of the bank.

When he failed to return within a reasonable period the police were notified. They found that he had not gone home nor had Tymme. They went to the latter's place of employment and found that Jesseman had called for him shortly before noon, and that the men had gone away together.

They apparently went to New York and from that city to Chicago, where they remained in hiding. Then Jesseman headed direct for the coast, where he visited a relative.

When Jesseman died, it is believed that his companions got word to Tymme, who notified Jesseman's mother of the death.

During all the time he was a fugitive Jesseman did not communicate with his mother. Pinkerton operatives in Rawlings are taking his finger prints for the purpose of sending them to Boston and completing the identification. Photographs of his body were taken.

U. S. PRISONER, SERVING LIFE TERM, GOES TO SEE SICK MOTHER

PERMITTED TO VISIT TEXAS

Convict Is Back in Portsmouth, N. H., After Traveling Thousands of Miles

Portsmouth, N. H., May 19.—For the first time in the history of the United States Naval Prison here, according to the officials, a life prisoner was granted leave-of-absence to visit his mother who was dangerously ill in Texas, in custody of a former prisoner and shipmate.

This is the case of Joseph C. Coker of Texas, who was sentenced to the United States Naval Prison two years ago for a crime committed in Southern waters. He is now back in the prison. Coker is considered a model prisoner, being an officer in the Mutual Welfare League as well as captain of the League Ship Georgia, with a jurisdiction over seventy-four men.

At the time that Thomas Mott Osborne was winding up his affair at the prison, and A. V. Wadhams entered the office as commandant, the mother of Coker was reported critically ill. Coker made imediate application with both wardens to visit her. They agreed and called the matter to the attention of Secretary Daniels, who approved of allowing the lifer to go providing suitable guard was sent along.

Daniel Mullins, a former prisoner and shipmate of Coker, was given the task, and they went to a little Texas town, four miles from Waco, without chains, handcuffs or arms. Mullins reported that he had no trouble whatever with his prisoner, who stayed with his mother until she recovered.

Saved From Abductors by Uncle's Shot

MISS KATHERINE LENELL.

ABDUCTOR SHOT BY POLICEMAN

Foil Effort to Kidnap Brighton Girl; Offenders Escape in Auto

he was falling and the machine disappeared in the direction of Newton. Patrolman Sullivan fired again at the escaping car but it failed to stop.

Hearing the screaming and shots Patrolman Henry Haney of Station No 14 ran to the scene. Noting the gun in the hands of Officer Sullivan, and thinking him a bandit as result of the latter's civilian dress, Haney took up a position behind the corner of a brick building on Washington street and opened fire on Officer Sullivan.

Sullivan, assuming the shots were discharged by one of the abductors, left behind, returned the fire, whereupon Haney once more shot at Sullivan's dodging figure, barely discernable in the darkness.

Sullivan's gun again spurted flame and Officer Hanes instantly fired at the spot where the flame was seen. The bullet went into a tree directly back of where Patrolman Sullivan had been standing a moment before, but he had dodged.

Daring on the part of Sullivan probably saved his life and ended the battle. He dashed into the light of one of the street lamps with his coat open displaying his badge.

CHASED AT HIGH SPEED.

Uniting forces the officers commandeered the machine of N. V. Reardon, who was returning home from Worcester and scoured the surrounding territory. Several minutes had elapsed, and although the Reardon machine, a high-powered racing car, travelled up Washington street for several miles at a terrific speed, nothing was seen of the bandits.

SAYS ENGLAND IS AFTER BILLION

Financial Pirates of America Stand Ready to Help, Declares Lafollette

Madison, Wis., May 19.—England plans a raid on American credit to the extent of at least one billion dollars, Senator Robert M. Lafollette declared in the leading editorial in his magazine, published today.

As proof the Senator submits what he declares to be the secret report of Sir George Paish, England's financial "ambassador" to the United States. In the report Paish urges home rule for Ireland at once. "In order to quiet Americans."

"Sir George Paish says that without the good will of the American people, Europe is lost," declares Lafollette in his editorial. "It is the Paish plan to borrow of the United States, using the American trade balance and issue to Americans League of Nations bonds.

"If this bold buccaneering scheme goes through, God help the poor.

"The details of the scheme cover pages of manuscript in the report of Sir George and we pass it by and give the Ambassador's conclusion:

"'By this arrangement Europe would obtain American credits of nearly $1,000,000,000 for the purpose of providing for its immediate necessities. But there would be no means of remitting back to the United States the sums realized in Europe from the sale of the produce, and consequently the bills held in America could not be discharged. There would be a cash balance in Europe at the disposal of the bank group after the sale of the American produce of nearly $1,000,000,000 and here it would have to remain.'

"Thus the plot is fairly plain and discloses just how the financial pirates of America propose to turn over $1,000,000,000 of the taxpayers' money to England, where, as Sir George naively says, 'And here it would have to remain.'"

COAL RELIEF EXPECTED FOR LIGHTING COMPANIES

Local gas, electric and power companies are confident that the Interstate Commerce Commission will grant priority to shipments of coal as the result of the nation-wide traffic congestion, as the commission has been impressed with the fact that these public utilities will have to shut down in many places unless they are assured of a steady supply of coal. Said Oscar H. Fogg, acting secretary of the National Committee on Gas and Electric Service: "If the situation does not improve 45,000,000 people who are served by gas companies may be affected."

Twenty-three army auto trucks arrived today from Hoboken, N. J., where they unloaded army material carried from Clinton in this State over a week ago. They will be used in carrying much of the army freight to different parts of New England.

The two regiments of the High School of Commerce who were reviewed by Colonel Louis C. Scherer of the Northeastern Department, were praised by this officer.

Brigadier-General John W. Ruckman was commended today by Brigadier-General Douglas MacArthur, superintendent of West Point, for his defence of that institution against the attack of Dr. Charles W. Eliot. The commendation of General Ruckman follows: "We are all very grateful to you for your prompt and loyal defence that you have made for the military academy. If all graduates were as faithful to the academy as you have been, this criticism of Dr. Eliot would probably never have come forth. It would have been nipped in the bud."

Governor Coolidge and other State officials are invited to the coast artillery meet on Saturday morning at Fort Strong and to the demonstration of the unit school in the afternoon. Edwards will make the address. The boat will leave the army base at 10:30 o'clock.

Enlistments in the Coast Artillery and the Corps of Engineers for service in the Philippines has been discontinued, according to orders received today at army headquarters from General Peyton C. March, chief of staff.

Upon learning of the death of Lieutenant H. C. Washburne, instructor of French at Dartmouth College, who was interpreter during the war for the Twenty-Sixth Division, General Edwards sent a telegram of condolence to the widow. The other interpreter of the division, Lieutenant John Pendleton Kiss, died some time ago.

Pastors Say a Christian Can Be a Sport

Can a man be a Christian and a sport? Boston ministers say "Yes."

Sport tends toward Christianity, they say. A man who plays baseball, or golf, or tennis, or any other sport is a better citizen than one who stays at home and spends his time reading, says the Rev. Kelley Jenness, pastor of the Tremont Street Methodist Church.

Rev. Selden E. MacGeeghon, pastor of the Congregational Church at Northboro, says, "A Christian cannot only be a sport—he ought to be."

ST. PAUL A SPORTSMAN.

Ministers who oppose Sunday baseball all agree with those who favor it that sportsmanship should be an American institution.

"St. Paul was a sportsman," says Mr. Jenness. "His epistles are replete with references to games and contests. He used sport slang in his preachings. He even used figures of speech common to the prize fight attendants of his days.

"He advised his hearers 'not to fight as one beating the air.' What he really meant in the vernacular of today was 'don't fight as one warming up.'

"A Christian who spends part of his time engaged in playing or watching baseball is a better citizen for it."

FAIR PLAY IS CHRISTIANITY.

Rev. Richard Wright, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Cambridge, says: "Sport leads to fairness and fair play. Fair play is Christianity. Therefore sport and Christianity go hand in hand."

"A sport is a man who can deliver the goods," according to Mr. McGeeghon. "Pests aren't sports. Games lead a man to play and lose and control himself. But no one can be a good sport unless he is a good Christian."

SAY COMPANY IS FORCING STRIKE

Lynn Machinists Charge General Electric Company Is Goading 17,000 Workers

Officials of the Machinists' Union, Local No. 471, of Lynn, openly charge that the officials of the General Electric Company in that city are trying "to force the issue" and "create a rupture to paralyze the industry and shut out 17,000 workers until a time when they will come back to work for them at specified terms and prices.

This statement was made today at the union's headquarters at No. 76 Monroe street, Lynn. Already 100 workers from the turbine department are on strike.

They also charge that foremen and sub-foremen at the plant are trying to force the men to go out on strike, and that conditions of 1918 have prevailed throughout the plant for the past few weeks. It is maintained that the purpose of the company, in event of a strike, is to shut them out of employment and starve them into submission.

The members of the machinists' local balloted yesterday on the strike question, and it is said that the sentiment for it is strong. Members of the seventeen unions in the factory will meet tomorrow night to take action on the matter of strike.

Under the system of shop committees, which have been in existence since the decision rendered by the War Labor Board, following the labor strife in 1918, all grievances were settled by these committees. It also gives the company equal rights in the presentation of grievances against the workers.

SIX MEN IN AUTO KIDNAP 2 GIRLS

One Found Bound and Gagged in Providence Street; Other Is Missing

Providence, May 19.—The police are seeking six men who last night kidnaped two girls, carried them away in an automobile and then, after attacking them, left one bound and gagged in a gutter.

The other girl is missing.

Annie Smith is at the Rhode Island Hospital as a result of her experiences. Her companion was Mary Vincellor, seventeen years old, and, according to the Smith girl, was last seen in the machine outside the city limits.

While patrolling Douglass avenue today a policeman found the helpless girl. She was barely able to give her name and tell how she had been inveigled into a machine in which six men were riding. It was against their will that they went, the Smith girl said. The men quieted their outcries and drove into the country with them.

Fat Women as Good as Thin in Business

Fat women are just as efficient in business as thin ones, Mrs. Frank B. Tupper told an audience of business executives at the College of Secretarial Science of Boston University.

Here are some of the other attributes a woman should have to be successful in business as sketched by Mrs. Tupper, who is a lecturer on secretarial ethics and adviser to the girl students at the university.

She should not wear extreme styles.

She should not wear her hair in huge puffs over her ears.

She should not wear French heels, dropstitch hose and short skirts.

The average business man regards girls attired as described above as "poor damn fools," according to Mrs. Tupper.

The successful business woman should be clean.

She should shun all prejudices of race, creed and nation.

She should have an easy manner of speech.

KEEP TROUBLES SECRET.

"It is your fault if any employe costs too much," said Mrs. Tupper. "Make your employes responsible for errors in their department. Put your whole experience behind your organization. The old idea of bossism is gone; we must have co-operation."

The speaker said that a lot could be accomplished if both employers and employes would refrain from bringing their troubles and family matters into the office.

"Women do not like to work for women. Women will take a chance quicker than a man when it comes to changing their jobs," Mrs. Tupper said.

"One thing a woman possesses more than a man is patience. You can't tell me anything about the difference between men and women when it comes to jealousy over somebody else's promotion. A woman's intuition has saved many a man in business.

"You can't tell us to stay at home and replace our jobs with men; it is too late. We are in business and we're going to stay.

RED HAIR MUSTN'T BE MIXED.

"If I am worth anything to a man, he should pay me for having me around.

"I would not send a red-headed girl to work for a red-headed man, nor a quiet girl without initiative to a man of similar type."

In the discussion which followed her talk one man in the bond business said: "The average woman is 20 per cent, more honest than the average man. She is above temptation in business, talks less about her employer's business outside the office and keeps a business secret better."

VILLA TRIES TO MAKE DEAL

Bandit Insists on Having His Way; Makes Demands on Rebels

By International News Service.

Washington, May 19. — Pancho Villa, Mexican outlaw leader, has outlined the terms upon which he will consider recognition of the Mexican revolutionary forces and joining with them for the creation of a new government in Mexico. Villa is endeavoring to arrange a conference with General Calles, "the one general in the revolutionary forces he trusts more than any other."

Pending negotiations with revolutionary leaders, Villa will demand he be permitted to keep a force of not less than 1,000 men to control "his country," and that he shall not be interfered with until the revolutionists carry out his demands. He has instructed his generals to "recruit to the limit."

Another demand Villa will make is that the new administration renounce the policies of Carranza. He is expected to go so far as to demand that the constitution of 1917 be renounced as "irregular," and that the former constitution of the republic be declared operative.

Villa is quoted as referring to General Obregon as "black as Carranza, only worse from wallowing in the mud."

Hearings by the Fall senatorial sub-committee, which has been investigating the Mexican situation for several years, will be concluded next week and its report will be made before the end of the month.

The last days of the hearings are being devoted to the activities of the revolutionary leaders against American interests in Mexico in the past. Senator Fall has permitted considerable testimony to be taken showing the leaders of the revolution were the Carranza leaders who advocated the confiscation of American property rights in that country.

Luis N. Morones, Mexican labor leader, who has been in conference with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, may be selected as the diplomatic representative to the United States from the provisional government in Mexico.

Morones has asked that the American Federation of Labor use its influence with the administration to secure recognition of the revolutionary government, or at least its moral support.

All of the Carranzistas taken prisoners in the battles at San Marcos and Rinconada have been set free.

British Consul Body of Vera Cruz, who was reported missing, is on his way to this city.

WANTS U. S. TO OWN ROADS

Would Give Boston and New England More Business, Says E. D. Codman

Government ownership of the railroads would be of especial benefit to Boston and New England, declared E. D. Codman, formerly president of the Fitchburg Railroad, today.

He said that a linking of the New Haven road with the Pennsylvania system and the Boston & Maine with the New York Central would give Boston a chance to compete with New York for import and export business.

"Anyone who takes the trouble to give it a thought knows," he said, "that the present method of private operation with guarantee by the government is unsound and that it makes for waste, for which the public has to pay. The private managers are bound to act in an irresponsible manner in the matter of expenses.

"A little instance is the advertisement by the New York Central lines in a Boston newspaper on May 11, a space covering two columns, advertising the block system of the New York Central Railroad, a system that is common to all railroads. There is no apparent purpose for the advertisement except to spend money."

WIDOW AWARDED $7,500 DAMAGES

Husband Was Killed by Automobile Driven on Wrong Side of Road

Because an automobile operated by the Metropolitan Coal Company passed a vehicle on the wrong side, Mrs. Blanche C. Gerrior, widow of Thomas N. Gerrior, who died as a result of being struck by the Metropolitan machine, was awarded a verdict of $7,500 before Judge Sisk and a jury in first session of Suffolk Superior Court today.

The accident occurred on February 17, 1917. Gerrior was passing along Massachusetts avenue, opposite the Edison Plant, when he was struck by the coal company car. He died two days later, unidentified, at the City Hospital.

Major Thomas L. Walsh, attorney for Mrs. Gerrior, arraigned the police of Station No. 9 for neglecting to identify the deceased. Major Walsh said that though Gerrior was a respectable man, working regularly for twenty years, a husband and father of seven children, the police permitted him to die as an unidentified citizen.

$4,500 VERDICT AGAINST HOTEL JACOT SUSTAINED

The full bench of the Supreme Court has overruled the exceptions of the defendants in the suit brought by Mrs. Emma L. Mason against Paul J. Jacot and the other proprietors of the Hotel Jacot, on Boylston street, and the jury verdict of $4,500 awarded to Mrs. Mason will have to be paid. On the evening of March 25, 1916, Mr. and Mrs. Mason went to the restaurant of the hotel and ordered food. A dispute arose over the amount of the check. As a result of the controversy Mr. and Mrs. Mason were taken to the La Grange street station. 6,000 BARBERS STRIKE; NEW YORK SHAVES SELF

By Universal Service.

New York, May 19.—In most of the barber shops only the bosses are at work and only the leisure classes could spare the time necessary to win a place in an active chair as a result of the barbers' strike. The union asserted that 6,000 barbers are out.

Makers of safty razor and self-hair-cutting appliances are advertising extensively and the army of self-shavers has been greatly increased.

NEW YORK DOES NOT NEED INCOME TAXES

By Universal Service.

New York, May 19.—According to figures obtained at the office of the State comptroller, the State will not need the $17,500,000 it has obtained since March from its residents in income taxes. Instead of needing this money, it is estimated that the State will have a surplus at the end of the fiscal year on June 30 of about twice the sum it collected in income taxes.

PITIES THAYERS AND CROCKERS

McSweeney Assails Hub "Neo-Americans, Who Invoke Spirit of Intolerance"

Assailing Boston's "neo-Americans," William Roscoe Thayer and E. U. Crocker, whom he charged with invoking the spirit of 17th century intolerance, Edward F. McSweeney, addressing members of the St. Joseph's Total Abstinence Society of Lynn, said only pity was felt for these "protagonists of de-Americanizing program."

McSweeney charged in the course of his address that anti-American and pro-British societies will seek to control the Plymouth tercentenary celebration and an effort made to distort the history of the Revolution.

His address in part follows:

"Monday night was a red-letter occasion for the Boston neo-Americans. William Roscoe Thayer, invoking the spirit of 17th century intolerance and using the catchwords of British propagandist, declared in substance at a meeting of the Syracuse Alumni that all those who dared to oppose imperialism, no matter how despotic or cruel, or wherever found, were un-American.

DE-AMERICANIZING PLAN.

"Another Boston neo-American, E. U. Cracker, pleaded for an aristocratic and autocratic form of government instead of a democracy.

"Both are protagonists of the de-Americanizing program, and what they advocate is the logical development of the great conspiracy to corrupt the patriotism of our children through the revision of their school text-books, which uses as its methods the dinning of false Revolutionary history into their young minds in the schools.

"This program, which has already gone immeasurably further than the public knows, is, however, beginning to be understood in all its unpatriotic heinousness.

"During the next six months the United States will be asked to permit the Sulgrave Institute, the National Security League, the British-American Union and the numerous other anti-American organizations which are being allowed freely to work on this soil, to control the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the coming to the Plymouth Settlement.

"The work of Adams, Otis and Franklin will be twisted to discredit the causes of the Revolution, and the holy zeal for freedom, which made the Colonials refuse for seven years all the offers to compromise the struggle, because they were not accompanied by the right to be free, will be minimized and distorted.

WORLD OIL CONTROL.

"Americanization and Anglicization will be declared synonymous terms. The protests of the United States Shipping Board and of patriotic Americans like "Matt" Brush and Admiral Benson against the unfair tactics which are being carried out every day against American shipping all over the world will be disregarded. We will be asked to accept with complacence, and without resistance, the monopoly control of the world's oil production, which, if permitted, will enable Britain, within a generation, to assess all its war bills on this country.

"Our attitude towards the Thayers and Crockers is of pity that men should be so far led astray from the truth and their obligations to their country, because in their subservient adherence to the design of the coalition government of England they are doing the thing which will eventually, if continued, break down English power.

FALL RIVER'S DRUG CLERKS WIN STRIKE

Fall River, May 19.—The striking drug clerks have won their fight for higher wages and a 58-hour working week. The strike began Monday morning when twenty-seven members of the local clerks union failed to report for work. The clerks lost their demand for commission on sales.

At this time it is important to emphasize again that FILENE VALUE-GIVING does not have to adapt itself to sudden changes in the market. It is built for just such changes. It is designed not to provide good values some of the time, but all of the time. And when as now, the market offers opportunities to buy certain lines of goods for less than usual; we are able, due to our system of constant stock corrections, to take quick and full advantage of such opportunities and to pass them along to our customers.

Lift Off Corns!

Doesn't hurt! Lift touchy corns and calluses right off with fingers

Apply a few drops of "Freezone" upon that old, bothersome corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting. Then shortly you lift it right off, root and all, without pain or soreness.

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes, and the hard skin calluses on bottom of feet lift right off—no humbug!

Tiny bottles of "Freezone" cost but a few cents at drug stores

Try it—you take no risk in doing so for Nature's Remedy costs only 25c (enough to last twenty-five days), and is sold with the distinct understanding that it must relieve and benefit or money back.

More than one million people in this country are using Nature's Remedy today. Five million boxes are used every year. What better proof of its great merit could be offered? It is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist?

YOURS TRULY WHERE YOU GOT THE HAT

This is the third of a series of advertisements published by the Committee of American Shipbuilders to assist in bringing about a right solution of questions vital not only to the future prosperity of shipbuilding but equally vital to the safety and prosperity of the Nation.

Why you are interested in an American merchant marine

PATRIOTIC Americans agree that a merchant marine is necessary to the Nation's welfare in peace and vital to its safety in war.

For decades before the war our flag was rarely met at sea.

America could not meet the competition of foreign ships, more cheaply operated and often fostered by government aid.

We have a great merchant fleet.

We must keep it.

But we must maintain American standards both in the shipyard and on the sea.

The Seaman's Act of 1915 improved conditions on board American ships and awakened a new interest in seafaring.

Legislation now pending in Congress aims to perpetuate our war-built merchant marine.

American labor is vitally interested—

Because busy shipyards employ tens of thousands of men (350,000 during the war); there are as many outside of but dependent on the shipyards; ships employ thousands more;

Because our shipyards and ships cannot exist—much less pay high wages—unless wise shipping laws are enacted;

Because more ships mean more foreign trade, which spells more work for American labor. What department store would deliver its goods in its competitor's motor vans?

This legislation declares that the policy of the United States is "to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage" a merchant marine.

This policy merits the support of every American.

BISHOP URGES FILM CENSOR

Episcopal Church Head and Grange Leader Favor Proposed Law

Bishop Lawrence was the chief speaker for the proponents of the bill providing censorship of moving pictures, before the Senate Committee on Ways and Means at the State House today. The clergyman said that the call for censorship came from two million people of the State, and that he had found a widespread feeling that a censorship was necessary.

The bishop said he did not attend the film shows as much as he would like to because he was afraid to go. The pictures were changed so rapidly, he said, that while one was interested in a fine performance, it was suddenly followed by one of low moral tone. He said that one striking feature of the censorship bill was that the proponents had absolutely not one cent to gain by it.

Leslie Smith, representing the State Grange, said that his organization, numbering about 40,000 were unanimously in favor of a censorship for the movies.

When R. Preston Clark talked for the bill he was asked by a member of the committee if the cost of maintaining a board of censors as the bill proposes would not come out of the general public. "There are 700,000 daily attending the movies in the State," said Mr. Clark. "If they were made to pay an additional one cent for admission, the sum taken in would be around two million dollars a year."

SENATOR FRANCE WOULD MODIFY 18TH AMENDMENT

New York, May 19.—United States Senator Joseph Irwin France of Maryland began his campaign for the Republican nomination for President with a speech at a dinner given in his honor by the Society of Arts and Sciences. He is the only Republican candidate to support the campaign for a modification of the Eighteenth Amendment. Senator France argued for the release of prisoners held for expressing opinions, against the use of the injunction in labor disputes, for a national program of production and economy and against the League of Nations as it is now planned.

ACCUSE MURPHY OF NEGLECT

East Boston Blames Commissioner for All Trouble Involving Two Firemen

Charging negligence on the part of Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy in failing to assign sufficient men to the East Boston stations, residents of that district today announced they would carry to Mayor Peters the decision of a trial board, by which members of the Saratoga street company were found guilty of failing to attend a fire.

It was pointed out that only two men were on duty at Saratoga street, that they were exhausted after hours of battling with flames on board a vessel at the Cunard docks and that they failed to hear the tapper alarm.

The fire occurred at 2:35 a. m., May 10, in a tenement at No. 142 Bremen street, causing damage estimated at $200.

Under the present system of one day off in three for firemen the East Boston stations suffer from a shortage of men.

At the time of the dock fire on the evening of May 8 the East Boston men were the first to arrive. Twelve of them were overcome and the others were tired out when they returned to their stations the next day after an all night struggle.

The company at Saratoga street was unable to keep a man on floor patrol. When the alarm for the Bremen street fire sounded the two firemen, who were sleeping, failed to hear it. They were discovered by Deputy Chief Fitzgerald O'Lalor, charges were preferred, they were found guilty and their cases placed on file.

Lower Prices and Their Meaning

With a safe future in sight, in accordance with our policy of seventy-nine years, we are meeting the present economic conditions sanely—from principle and not expediency.

By comparison, we find that many of our prices are lower than in other stores that have given a 20% discount. In some cases, where merchants have bought more advantageously than have we, our prices have been reduced immediately in order to safeguard our customers and give them the advantages that they might get elsewhere. That has been and will be our policy.

Were we to take a sweeping discount throughout the store, the replacement prices would be uncertain and would create higher prices for the future. The inevitable result would be—advantage now and disadvantage in the future. We shall therefore adhere to our policy of not sacrificing the future for the present, but still aim to sell merchandise as low, if not lower, than sold elsewhere.

IGHT OVER BILL WHICH LETS CITIES OWN TENEMENT HOUSES

ive bills, designed to stop rent profiteering reported unani- y by the Joint Judiciary Committee, have passed to a third g in the House of Representatives.

of the bills passed without or comment, a fourth was passed after a proposed amendment had been rejected, and the fifth resulted in a hot debate, during which the terms "socialistic" and "unconstitutional" were hurled about the chamber.

The debate came over the so-called "eminent domain" bill, based in part on one of the provisions of the Hays bill, advocated by the Boston American Tenants' League. To the simple provisions of the Hays bill that cities and towns be empowered to take property by right of eminent domain for the housing of their people, Senator Augustus Peabody Loring, who redrafted the measure for the Joint Committee on Judiciary, added clauses permitting municipalities to make building loans to individuals, and permitting for this purpose cities and towns to borrow funds.

In its present form this bill reads as follows: "Section 1—A city or town in which the Mayor or a majority of the Board of Selectmen proclaim that a public exigency, emergency or distress exists, because of an insufficient supply of shelter or available dwellings for its inhabitants, may acquire by purchase or take by right of eminent domain unimproved or improved real property in fee or for any less estate, and improve or dispose of the same so as to provide said shelter for its inhabitants and to afford adequate relief as against said exigency, emergency or distress.

PROVIDES FOR SECURING LOANS

"Section 2—In case a city or town takes property hereunder by right of eminent domain and is unable to agree with the owners as to the damages to be paid therefor, the same shall be assessed in the same manner as where land is taken for highway purposes, and shall be paid by the city or town.

"Section 3—For the purpose of encouraging and facilitating the construction of dwelling houses, apartments and tenements, a city or town may make building loans to individuals on such terms as may be approved by the mayor and city council or by the board of selectmen.

"Section 4—For the purpose of this act, a city or town may borrow such sums in excess of the statutory limit of indebtedness, not exceeding one per cent. of its assessed valuation, and may issue therefor bonds or notes for periods not exceeding ten years, and otherwise subject to the provisions of chapter seven hundred and nineteen of the acts of nineteen hundred and thirteen, and amendments thereof, so far as applicable."

Representative Monk of Watertown was the first to challenge the bill, saying that while he was in sympathy with its aims he desired to question Representative Essex Abbott of Haverhill, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, about its provisions.

Representative Abbott replied that the bill is simply a paraphrase of the new constitutional amendment adopted by vote of the public itself in 1918. It has received the careful attention of the judiciary committee, he said, and was drawn by one of the ablest lawyers in that body. If any city or town lost all the money it invested through operation of the act, it could lose but one per cent. of its valuation, he pointed out.

"SOCIALISTIC," CHARGES RYDER

Representative Wall of Worcester asked if under the bill it would not be possible for a municipality to take property, "run it down and return it to the owner in a run down condition."

That such a contingency might arise, Mr. Abbott agreed, but pointed out that if such an unlikely case happened the owner has a remedy in court.

Representative Ryder of Middleboro arose at this point to train the first broadside of oratory against the bill, which he proclaimed a "fad of faddists, socialistic, unsound, unwise and inexpedient."

Representative Monk suggested an amendment, and Representative Burr of Boston wanted the word "citizens" substituted for the word "inhabitants."

"It is right in line with the socialism professed by the former well-known Socialist from Haverhill. It should be killed," he declared.

Representative Reading of Cambridge then gained the floor. "I am surprised," he thundered, "that the Representative from Haverhill should support such a bill as this. It is a bad bill and should not pass. It has great possibilities for harm."

He made a bitter attack on the Judiciary Committee for reporting the bill, declaring: "If Boston or Cambridge goes into this business they can buy any sort of houses at prices up to the limit and suffer enormous losses. It will be possible for corrupt officials to use the bill for their own ends. It should not pass. I hope the House will not permit it to go to a third reading.

REP. HAYS DEFENDS BILL

He drew a fearful picture of the act in the hands of corrupt officials, and declared the measure "socialistic, unconstitutional," and other things.

"It's the same old story," declared Representative Martin Hays of Brighton, rising to answer Mr. Reading. "We hear it year after year. When free schools were proposed they were called 'socialistic and unconstitutional.' Yet the descendants of the men who applied these epithets would not dare to come here today and ask us to repeal the laws which made free schools possible.

"Every time a piece of constructive legislation is proposed we have the same old gas bombs directed against it—'socialism, anarchy, unconstitutional.'

"This bill was drawn by the Senate chairman of the Judiciary Committee, a member of the Constitutional Convention which passed the act upon which this bill is based, and one of the foremost constitutional lawyers of this Commonwealth. I think you gentlemen will agree with me that Senator Loring knows quite as much about constitutional law as the gentleman from Cambridge."

Representative Hamburger of Boston said he wanted the bill passed as a measure of popular relief." Great distress exists in Boston. Respectable people have been turned out of their homes, and real estate sharks have done all they can to tear everything possible from the people who went to war. I have an amendment which I will propose later. I hope the bill will pass."

WANTED PROFIT CUT TO 20 PCT.

A rising vote was ordered, and the bill won a third reading 77 to 39.

The bills making it a misdemeanor for landlords to fail to provide heat, water, light, elevator service, or telephone service promised in their agreements with tenants; and giving the courts the right to order a six months' stay in evictions, were passed without opposition.

The bill providing that an increase of over twenty-five per cent. in rent was then taken up.

Representative Arnold of Boston, who said he had felt the heavy hand of the rent profiteer, moved to amend this bill. He felt that twenty-five per cent. was too high, and moved that this be changed to twenty per cent.

"Now we come to the joker in the bill," he said. "I refer to the clause reading, 'except in cases where unusual repairs and alterations have been made.' It has been my experience of some years in Boston that any repairs are unusual."

Mr. Abbott of Haverhill explained that the bill was based on the New York bill of similar character, but went further, in that it permitted tenants and landlords alike to go into court for relief from increases of either more or less than twenty-five per cent., which, he explained, was simply a sort of guide post for the courts, which would use their own discretion in individual cases.

Cambridge Out to End Rent Profiteering

Cambridge today opened a campaign against "anarchistic profiteering landlords" in an effort to aid victims of organized realty profiteers.

At a meeting of the Cambridge City Council a commission of five members was appointed to dismantle the cliques who are said to be "trying to get all they can while the going's good."

Action of the council was prompted by an editorial on the Hays and other bills which appeared in the American recently.

FORCED TO SELL LIBERTY BONDS

Middle Class, Hard Hit by H. C. L., Dump Them on Market

The pinch of high prices, reflecting itself in Liberty Bonds, has, according to financial experts, gripped the middle class. It is this class, which invested largely in moderate-sized bonds, that has been compelled to throw their bonds again on the market, due to old H. C. L. On this account, so the financiers say, the market is loaded with Liberty Bonds, with the result that never before were there such good chances to make a sure profit of 5¾ to 6¼ per cent. on a sound investment, backed up by the government.

Another phase of the Liberty Bond market is the constant falling in price of the national securities, the lowest price recorded being $8 for bonds of the second issue.

So-called "price wars" are said to have affected the Liberty Bond market most of all. There is a very marked stringency of credit in business throughout the whole country, due to hardships caused by freight tie-ups. This has brought about "frozen credit" in banks, with the result that merchants, finding the public refusing to pay the current high prices, and being at their wits' end to rid their shelves of some of the high-priced stock, have turned to the banks for help.

They have received no help at the banks, many banks even refusing to renew old loans. This has dumped Liberty and Victory bonds on the market, as the only ready means of getting immediate money. Thus the market yesterday made a record for sale of bonds.

OIL SUPPLY IN U. S. DECREASING

Only Government Aid Can Help Meet Crisis, Says Expert

New York, May 19.—Declaring that the United States will have to turn to other countries for its future oil supply, Lincoln G. Valentine, chairman of the board of directors of the Central American Petroleum Corporation, points out in the sub-joined article that only government aid can help meet the oil crisis. Mr. Valentine is a recognized authority on Latin-American affairs.

By LINCOLN G. VALENTINE.

It is with great satisfaction that I learn that a bill has been introduced in the United States Senate to promote a government oil corporation. It is apparent that at last, after years of procrastination and delay, the government has begun to bestir itself to the seriousness of the situation.

SUPPLY BEING EXHAUSTED.

Oil experts for years have realized that the supply of this country was being exhausted, and that for its future oil supply the United States must turn to other countries. Eminent geologists, also realizing the approaching crisis, investigated and report that an oil bearing strata extended from this country into Mexico, Central and South America.

Acting on these reports, individual financiers and corporations have been obtaining numerous leases on properties and concessions in these countries. At no time has the government lent any aid or encouragement to these projects. The individual operators, having at heart America's future, have been compelled, singlehanded, to buffet prohibitive taxes set up by other governments, their properties have been raided by brigands, their equipment has been confiscated, and, worst of all, they have been compelled to compete with government-subsidized syndicates from other countries.

ENCOURAGEMENT NECESSARY.

The competition has been so keen that government encouragement in some form is a vital necessity. Consequently I learn with sincere satisfaction that the efforts made for years to interest our government in the consideration of its own future welfare are beginning to have an effect. When one considers that we probably will have to import about 80,000,000 barrels of oil from Mexico alone this year, the need of government aid can be easily realized.

Senator Phelan's bill offers an opportunity for oil companies of this country to consolidate. Speaking for the Central American Petroleum Corporation, I can say that we stand ready at all time to enter into any arrangement with the government which will work to the welfare of the United States. Ours is an American company, directed by American directors, owned by American stockholders, and formed for the particular purpose of securing and expanding a purely American oil supply.

Americans Cornering Shakespeare Relics

London, May 19 — American collectors are cornering Shakespeareana, is the plaint of the trustees and guardians of Shakespeare's birthplace and Sir Sidney Lee, their chairman, appeals to Parliament to pass a special law prohibiting the export of valuable relics.

"We cannot keep Shakespeareana in this country because of the colossal prices which Americans are paying for such treasures," said Sir Sidney. He predicts that the strength of the American contingent of visitors to Stratford-on-Avon this year will get back to the 10,000 mark of the pre-war days. Last year the number was 2,000.

SENATE SUSTAINS 2.75 BEER BILL VETO

Governor Coolidge's veto of the 2.75 beer and wine bill was sustained by the Senate by a vote of 22 to 14. The advocates needed a two-thirds majority vote to tip over the veto.

Senator Wells of Boston, who conducted the fight for passage of the bill when it went through the Legislature, voted to sustain the Governor after announcing: "If we should pass this bill over his veto, our action would be construed all over the country as our having gone back on Governor Coolidge and law and order."

COMPOSER'S CHANGE OF NAME STILL STIRS VIENNA

Vienna, May 19.—Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow," has changed his name to Lehar Ferenc, which is a Czec name.

Vienna theatregoers are indignant over this and the press warns the composer that he had better not try to produce a new operetta in this capital which "made" Lehar but will have nothing to do with a Ferenc.

5 MILLION FUND FOR McADOO

Big Business Backs Wilson's Son-In-Law for the Presidency

New York, May 19.—Reported details of a Democratic line-up for the San Francisco convention were obtained today.

Powerful forces are preparing for the fray with President Wilson and William Gibbs McAdoo leading one side and a combination lead by such leaders as Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall, and Tom Taggart of Indiana, directing the other side with Governor Cox of Ohio, and Governor Edwards of New Jersey, as its selections for President, and Vice President respectively.

It is regarded as probable that if the opposing sides marshal relatively the same number of delegates at the convention William Jennings Bryan will hold the balance of power as he did when he caused Woodrow Wilson to be named as the candidate in 1912.

A man friendly to the Cox-Edwards forces charged today that a big business syndicate has been formed to underwrite the campaign of McAdoo. At least $5,000,000 has been pledged for this purpose, it was charged.

Among members of the syndicate, it was said are Bernard M. Baruch, Thomas L. Chadbourne, Cleveland H. Dodge and Henry Morgenthau of New York and Charles R. Crane and Edward M. Hurley of Illinois. All of these men are millionaires.

LEGION ENROLLS 6,000 VETERANS

General Edwards Endorses Campaign to Swell Organization's Membership

Massachusetts, it is believed, will be among the leading States in the membership drive which ends Saturday. The Bay State has already added more than 6,000 members in the nation-wide drive for 1,[illegible] new legionaires.

General Clarence R. Edwards has enthusiastically endorsed the legion's campaign in a letter to Department Adjutant Spillane.

About 1[illegible] persons attended an open air rally held by the [illegible] Heights Post No. 34. The post, which has a membership of 500 men, is out to double this figure.

General Edwards' letter endorsing the drive follows.

Mr. Leo A. Spillane, Department Adjutant, The American Legion, Room 179, State House, Boston, Massachusetts.

My Dear Mr. Spillane,

I have your good letter telling me that during the week of May 17th to 22nd, inclusive, the American Legion will hold a monster nation-wide "Push" for new members.

As you know, I never neglect an opportunity to urge men as a duty to their country and to the cause and to their experience to join the legion.

I believe that the future of this country, especially the next ten years, is predicated upon the men who have served, both those who did in France and the fellows who ate their hearts out trying to get to France. They have learned poise, they gained the sense of proportion, they have been able to compare [illegible] with other institutions and I confidently think they can be considered on the side of right and conservative and red-blooded support of our government and that they will solve its desperate problems that face us today.

The only way to do this thing is to express a concrete voice and the only way to express a concrete voice is by one organization like The American Legion. It is our [illegible] if there is anything we don't like about the Legion, if any of us think they are making mistakes, it is our duty to join and select the right people and use our voice to guide them in the proper direction. But as soldiers none of us should stay out or take our doll and run away and say we won't play.

The Legion is the hope of this country and it is made up of the men who are going to be the worth while fathers of the next generation.

You are at liberty to use this hurriedly dictated letter as you see fit.

Very sincerely yours,
C. R. Edwards,
Major General, U. S. Army.

Lawyers in a Who Is Who Game in Court

A dual personality offers enough possibilities for confusion, but when double dual personalities become involved the effects are upsetting, as was proved in the Superior Court before Judge Morton today.

Two lawyers appear, respectively, as plaintiff and counsel for plaintiff, and defendant and counsel for defendant. They stepped out of one character and into another in rapid succession.

John G. Walsh, lawyer, sues Edward E. Ginsberg, also a lawyer, for $550 for services in the case of Mrs. Joseph Bergerson, a widow, who was awarded $1,[illegible] as damages for the death of her husband. The widow got $750, Ginsberg $1,[illegible], and Walsh, though he claims he did all the work on the case, received $100.

Ginsberg contended that Walsh owed him money and that Walsh's services extinguished the debt.

ROLLINS BOYS HAVE HOPE

Eagerly Looking Forward to Hearing for New Trial on Saturday

Three men in prison are looking forward to Saturday with anxiety, but widely different feelings.

In the loom room of the State Prison Charles Rollins, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, thinks only of the possibilities that May 22 holds out for him. At Charles street Jail George R[illegible], awaiting sentence to imprisonment for murder, thinks only that date [illegible] him. In the Eastern Pennsylvania Penitentiary at Philadelphia Jesse Murphy, who has confessed [illegible] in both these murders [illegible] entirely exonerates the Rollins boys, sees next Saturday a hope of [illegible] for his crimes.

All is in readiness for the hearing before Judges Brown and Keating which will determine whether or not the Rollins boys get a new trial. Major Thomas J. Walsh and Judge Thomas H. Connolly have prepared every angle of the case in the event of a strong objection to a new trial by Assistant District Attorney Gallagher, who was the prosecuting attorney at the trial of both boys.

Several witnesses will be brought from jail by habeas corpus proceedings, and where this is not possible their depositions will be submitted.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

Facts Every American Should Know

THE war is over. We did what we set out to do. But victory left some things to be accounted for. And this is one of them.

The Government said to the Waltham Watch Company: "We need your skill and creative genius in this national enterprise." Waltham came to attention, saluted, and went to work.

Let us imagine for a moment what happened. Here were over five thousand people, and a great organization suddenly turned aside from supplying the normal demand for Waltham products to the abnormal demands of war and its accessories.

What this entailed cannot be told here, but the genius of Waltham is American genius and deeds speak louder than words.

AMERICAN ships and the large accretions to our glorious navy could not go to sea without accurate, delicately adjusted chronometers—and they were supplied by Waltham.

American aeroplanes could not climb into the skies without clocks that would withstand the vibrations of powerful motors and abnormal extremes of temperature—demanding the most exact horological adjustments—and they were supplied by Waltham.

American motor transports and automobiles required speedometers and sturdy shock and stress resisting timepieces—and they were supplied by Waltham.

Our beloved soldiers, who fought and died for us, needed watches, and thousands of Walthams went into battle and kept record of Time that shall ever be memorial.

Indeed, "Waltham" in Paris supplied service 'behind the lines' for repairs, etc., and was officially recognized as Watch headquarters for the A. E. F.

And this is not all—

SOMEWHERE in the United States Uncle Sam approves the gifts that his sons of genius create for the glory of his name.

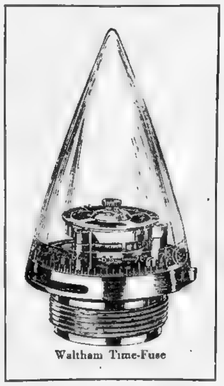
It is night. A few hooded and powerful electric lights search the darkness to reveal a huge gun, around which are gathered a few men who serve this giant of strength.

A sharp word of command! A flame of fire! A concussion that rocks the earth! The roar of a shell! A few tense, numbered seconds! Then, out there on the far horizon, a burst of fire miles away—an explosion timed to infinitesimal moments by Waltham.

This, the triumph of Waltham genius—a time-fuse that splits a second into a hundred parts—that far exceeds in instantaneous accuracy all other time-fuses hitherto invented—that sends each shell to its destination governed by Waltham's inventive genius hidden in the apex of the shell.

Imagine this device, light enough and of such delicate accuracy to explode the charge at a hundredth of a second, fired in a shell with a velocity of 2,700 feet per second, and leaving the gun's rifled barrel at 25,000 revolutions per minute.

Talk of "position" time-keeping—here is a whirligig of motion—a "position" test that subdues competitive argument. And imagine a timepiece strong and durable enough to endure a blow, a strain, a stress of two pounds to each grain of its weight. A terrific reaction for the honor of America when the gun is fired.



Waltham Time-Fuse

NEVER in the world's history has there been such miraculous time-keeping, such performance, such absolute reliability under such abnormal conditions. As Americans, we have a right to be proud of Waltham genius.

But if it had not been for nearly three-quarters of a century filled with work behind the Waltham time-fuse, it would not have been years in front of all others. Pre-eminence is its own reward.

Years of concentrated development on an infinitesimal unit—ofttimes out of sight in the works of the watch—have added renown to the name of Waltham.

The Waltham Watch, upon whose universal time-keeping the sun never sets, is but an older brother of this marvelous time-keeper in the shell.

WE have told you these facts because they supply some reasons why Waltham Watches are not plentiful. We are concentrating every resource of our organization to meet a national demand which is a tribute to Waltham excellence.

We know that if your dealer cannot supply you immediately with your choice of a Waltham Watch he will be able to supply you before long. And a Waltham Watch is worth waiting for. Grade for grade no foreign watch can compare with it.

WE have made many statements of Waltham invention in the mechanics of watchmaking—we have opened the door of the "works" in a Waltham Watch and created American pride in this Waltham masterpiece. We have claimed world leadership in watchmaking. "Here are the proofs" has been our challenge and our pride.

Proofs we have given and still more proofs we intend to give: science at its utmost in the alloy of a metal, in the polishing of a part, in the setting of a jewel, in the hardening and tempering of steel, in the design of a balance staff, in the bend of a guard pin or the structural curve of a spring—little things, hidden things.

Yet it is these scientific inventions, developments—call them what you will—that have carried the fame of Waltham unto the uttermost ends of the earth.

You protect your investment. You are assured time-keeping dependability. You forestall costly repairs. You own the utmost in fine watch-making when you buy a

PNEUMATIC TIRE ECONOMICAL

Miller Rubber Company's Product an Ideal Shoe for All Trucks

Pneumatic tires for motor trucks cut highway transportation cost in half by permitting twice the speed, with safety, that solid tires permit, is the assertion of pneumatic tire builders. It is also claimed they extend the life of the vehicle by protecting it from road shocks and vibration and save gasoline and oil by providing better traction at all times.

With solid tires from ten to fifteen miles is the maximum speed attainable with safety and the average speed is little better than ten miles per hour. The truck equipped with pneumatics may be driven at from twenty to thirty-five miles per hour —or at passenger car speed.

So skilfully are these tires made and so rigidly have they been tested by the producers that the truck owner gets the maximum service from pneumatics. An illustration of how carefully these tires are produced is to be found in the heavy duty cord tire department of the Miller Rubber Company at Akron. This company several years ago, deciding to produce truck pneumatics, built experimental heavy duty cords and placed them on trucks, which were then heavily loaded and driven thousands of miles until worn out.

Miller Cord truck tires are made of thousands of cable cords floated layer on layer in new live rubber. These tires neutralize road shocks, keeping them from truck and load. Both truck and load rest upon a heavy air cushion, protecting the vehicle, extending its period of usefulness, permitting the safe hauling of the most fragile merchandise and allowing a speed of from 20 to 25 miles an hour with perfect safety on country roads.

DENBY TRUCK DEALER PREDICTS BUYING BOOM

"The future of the motor truck business in Massachusetts is certainly very promising," said W. P. Woodbridge, the local Denby dealer. "I certainly believe New England offers one of the best truck markets in the United States and we have been feeling the pulse of the market lately in increased buying. All this means more business. Contractors are buying heavy trucks, which is a good barometer of trade conditions, and this is a good omen for the future.

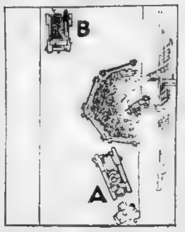
The day is not far distant when motor trucks will play a far greater part in the merchandising world of New England than today and I certainly intend to have the name 'Denby' known all over New England."

BAKER CO. DISPLAYS FIRST SELDEN MOTOR

The Baker Motor Sales Company of No. 400 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, the local Selden Truck distributor, is exhibiting the first Selden motor vehicle ever built. This vehicle, propelled by a crude internal combustion motor, is now the property of the Stevens Institute of Hoboken, N. J. The Baker Company has mounted this old "road wagon" on an up-to-date Selden two and one-half-ton truck and sent it over the roads of Massachusetts in a three days' run which started yesterday.

George Selden, the father of the now famous Selden patent, conceived the idea of a self-propelled road wagon in 1877, although the working model was built many years later. This old Selden will surely attract interest wherever it is exhibited and the direct comparison with cars of today is interesting and instructive.

What Every Autoist Should Know



Every motorist should know that if one side of the street is blocked by a pile of bricks or other obstruction, or if one-half the road is being repaired making it impossible for two automobiles to pass abreast the one reaching either end of the obstruction first has the right of way, whether he is on the left or right of the obstruction. There is no law governing the case of two machines arriving at exactly the same instant at opposite ends of the obstruction but, according to officials, that probably never would happen. If it does, common sense should prevail.

In the diagram above Motorist A at the lower right-hand side has the right of way to the left of the obstruction as he arrived at one end of it a second or two before B, as shown on top at the left.

"OVERLAND 4" GROWING FAST IN PUBLIC FAVOR

"The popularity of the new 'Overland 4' grows by leaps and bounds," said Weldon McKone of Connell & McKone, in a recent interview. "When we had to enthuse over this car before we could go out and actually show what it could do, the whole sales force was slightly handicapped, although every man in the place was thoroughly sold on the proposition.

"As soon as the little cars began to come through and we could show the prospective buyer what value we had and what it could do as a performer, our difficulty at once was to answer satisfactorily the daily question, 'When can I get my car?'

"It is almost impossible to believe what this car will do without an actual ride in it, but we are only too glad to make good our claims."

COMMONWEALTH 4-40 IS ATTRACTING TRADE

The Commonwealth 4-40" is attracting attention each week that it is exhibited and Frank B. Saunders, local retail sales manager of the Massachusetts Motors, is particularly pleased with the reception which this car is receiving.

"It only took these few days of good weather," said Mr. Saunders, "to bring in interested buyers. The public is certainly ready to take cars and those dealers who are in a position to make immediate deliveries are reaping the harvest. I am more than pleased with the way the Commonwealth is going in Boston."

Mr. Fixit will answer questions through this column. Address all communications to him. Do not send stamps for reply. All inquiries will be answered through the paper.

VELIE CITED FOR WAR SERVICE

Awarded Merit Certificate for Sacrificing Commercial Trade in Aid of Government

"The Velie Motors Corporation of Moline, Illinois, has been cited by the government for meritorious effort during the war," says A. J. Shorey, president of the New England Velie Company, distributors for the six New England States of Briscoe and Velie products.

"The citation reads as follows: 'Neglecting their commercial trade they placed their entire truck department at the disposal of the government, manufacturing heavy aviation trucks, trailers and machine gun bodies, this in addition to assembling and storing Class B trucks.'

"In addition to the items specifically mentioned in this citation, Velie built thousands of gun carts, of Class 'AA' trucks and horse-drawn ambulances, which work was accomplished in our passenger car plant, displacing our regular car production.

"We have just received a copy of the Certificate of Merit and are justly proud of the same.

"Major-General George W. Burr, assistant chief of staff, in sending it to the Velie factory, says: 'It is very gratifying to me to be enabled to transmit this visible recognition of patriotic war service.'

"We are proud of this award and we have a sense of having done our duty well."

U. S. TIRE COMPANY STOPS BLOWOUT EVIL

From an address by W. Y. Logan, manager of pneumatic truck tire department, United States Tire Company, before the Metropolitan Section, S. A. E., New York.

One phase of the use of the pneumatic truck tire which has worried the truck owner to no small extent is the possibility of punctures and blowouts. Another phase is rut wear on the side walls. Recently I received a letter from the engineer of a truck manufacturing company, on the subject of the insufficient thickness of the rubber side walls.

"I know our company has taken care of this and I believe other tire manufacturers are doing the same. We have very materially increased the rubber cushioning in the side walls of our tires, but, to be frank, I have never had a communication from our organization indicating troubles of this kind.

"As for punctures and blowouts, I have records of trucks operated in practically every class of business showing that pneumatic truck tires have been in service anywhere from one year to two and one-half years and during the entire time have never been off the rims.

"The matter of punctures is of minor importance. As an example of this, the rural free delivery department of the United States Post office operates a large fleet of pneumatic tired trucks. They no longer believe it necessary to carry spares, due entirely to the fact that the matter of punctures and blowouts was negligible."

ASK MR. FIXIT

Mr. Fixit: Will you kindly tell me through [illegible] if there is any way to clarify [illegible] has been used for a period [illegible] and drawn from crank case, to remove carbon and other deposits. If so [illegible] be used over again and be as good a lubricant? J. H. B., Milton.

Your oil might be strained, but it is absolutely worthless as a lubricant after having been used for a year or so. As a matter of fact you should drain your crank-case, wash it out with kerosene and fill with new oil, THE BEST YOU CAN BUY. You will find that your engine will run better if you drain out your oil at least twice every season and re-fill with fresh oil.

Mr. Fixit: Will you kindly tell me the trouble with my 1917 Ford? It is hard to crank, taking from 10 to 15 minutes to start. What causes it? Would a groove in the brake band cause bad starting? Hoping to have an early reply in your columns. G. B., Boston.

The groove in your brake band has nothing to do with the starting. If your car knocks on the hills until you retard the spark, it may be timed a little "early" which would account for the hard starting. Clean the needle valve of the carburetor and drain out the bowl and sediment bulb. See that there is no obstruction in the gasoline pipe. Examine the intake manifold gasket for air leaks. Clean spark plugs and see that points are set the thickness of a thin dime apart. Make your mixture rich by holding out the choker. Let me hear from you if this does not help and give me a little more information.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a Ford touring car, engine number 2,748,185. Just when was this [illegible]? How long would you say it has been [illegible]? Although the engine has been overhauled, having had new pistons, connecting rods, rings, etc., I have great difficulty in starting the engine if it stands idle for a day or so. I have to use ether and crank for a half an hour nearly. What would you say was the trouble and how can I make it start more easily? E. A. F., New Bedford, Mass.

Note what has been said to G. B. above. Also clean your commutator and see that it is timed correctly. Your engine is a late 1918 model. You may be getting a very weak spark from the magneto. With the switch off, turn the motor over with choker pulled out. Do this about six times and then put on switch and try it.

SEEK STUDENTS OF GAELIC

Hub Societies Asked to Send Members to Take Summer Courses in Indiana

Nine courses in Gaelic subjects will be part of the curriculum during the Summer months at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, and the national headquarters of the Friends of Irish Freedom calls on subordinate branches in Greater Boston to take advantage of this opportunity by sending some of their talented members to master the ancient tongue and later act as instructors in their respective communities.

The growing interest in the United States, and particularly Massachusetts, in the Gaelic language and in Gaelic culture, which has recently been recognized by the Knights of Columbus in their reconstruction courses in many parts of the country is still making itself felt. It is for this reason that the University of Notre Dame offers nine courses. Of these, three will give instruction in the Gaelic language and the others will cover many phases of Catholic history and art.

The statement on this subject issued today by the Friends of Irish Freedom, follows, in part: "The traditions of Celtic culture in France have persisted from the middle ages in its sympathetic attitude toward expatriated Irishmen of many generations. The sympathetic bond of common love of freedom has united these two peoples since the very beginning of the modern era.

From the days of Sarsfield and the 'Wild Geese,' the Irish Brigade in the French army has perpetuated the spirit of devotion to the cause of liberty. Today the recrudescence of this sympathy between the French and Irish is of particular interest since it is now an open secret that the French Republic guards the political friendship of England only because she fears her encroachments as an enemy."

DESTROYER FLEET NOW IN NARRAGANSETT BAY

Newport, R. I., May 19.—Sixteen ships of the destroyer flotilla of the Atlantic fleet have arrived in Narragansett Bay for the Summer, anchoring off Jamestown. They comprise the Leary, Bagley, Herbert, Schenck, Barney, Blakeley, Bernardou, Billings, Hopewell, Abbott, Thomas, Clemson, Crowninshield, Robinson, Goldsborough and Dahlgren. The flagship Camden and tender Dixie have also arrived from New London.

HAZARD'S BEACH NOW A CLOSE RIVAL TO BAILEY'S

Newport, R. I., May 19.—Hazard's Beach is growing in popularity. It is more inclined to democracy than the nearby Bailey's Beach. More than fifty families have taken bathhouses at Hazard's Beach for the season. Prominent among these are Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 2nd, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William S. Sims and Prince and Princess Lubomirski.

MARION COAKLEY.

Marion Coakley, the blonde secretary of George Revanent, the genius in "Genius and the Crowd," went to school in Boston and is busily engaged in renewing old acquaintances. It is only two seasons since she made her debut as a leading woman in "Cappy Ricks" at the Plymouth Theatre. That play was practically torn to pieces after leaving Boston and virtually an entirely new cast inserted, with the exception of Miss Coakley, who continued in it through its New York run.

Young leading women of charm and talent are scarce on the stage and George M. Cohan is almost as proud of his secretary in "Genius and the Crowd" as he is of his Genius, Revanent.

SAN FRANCISCO TO BOOM GOLF

Olympic Club Plans Construction of Three Courses to Cost at Least $225,000

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

The West is always trying to get ahead of the East and the very latest from San Francisco is that the Olympic Club there is to expend $225,000 and as much more as necessary to construct the finest 18-hole golf course in the world.

The reason the Olympians make such a wide statement is because each hole on this course will be fashioned after one of the best holes in the British Isles or in the Eastern section of the United States. Herbert F. Fowler, the British golf course architect, has been engaged to lead the Olympians in their adventure.

TWO OTHER COURSES PLANNED.

While the greatest effort will be devoted to a championship course the plans also call for a second 18-hole course and a nine-hole course, which will be similar to Lord Northcliffe's nine holes in England; sort of a practice course calling for a variety of difficult shots.

San Francisco golfers complain that the Pacific Coast has not done as much in National golf as in tennis and it is thought the $225,000 enterprise will stimulate interest in championship play. Few Californians have ventured East for the national title events in golf, although tennis players have come from the far West and returned with the honors.

SEEK TO DEVELOP PLAYERS.

Pacific Coast golfers desire to develop players who will make as good showing in golf championships as its representatives have done in tennis.

An obscure but mighty picturesque golf course in Massachusetts is located in the town of Bolton and is patronized by the golfers of Hudson and other communities in that neighborhood. It is know as the Runaway Brook Golf Club, and the nine holes are delightfully situated upon undulating green fields, surrounded by woodlands. Francis Ouimet played Runaway Brook recently in 66. Thomas Logan is a member, and he enjoys playing there as well as at many of the golf clubs with more pretentious courses.

FIRST GOLF COURSE IN FRANKLIN.

Another fine nine-hole course is located in Franklin, Mass. Few Boston golfers have played at either Runaway Brook or Franklin, but they would not spend an afternoon badly at either of these courses. There are a number of players at Franklin who would do well in the open tournaments of the Massachusetts Golf Association if they took advantage of the events. The Franklin course is not easy, and it requires real golf to break eighty there.

* * *

It appears that there will be more than 100 starters in the Brookline Country Club event on Thursday. Of this number about ten are practically sure to qualify in the first sixteen for the match play. This means that about ninety golfers will have a great old tussle struggling for those other six places in the cup fight.

PETERS APPROVES COAL CONTRACT; GETS NO BIDS

Failure to get bids for coal in response to advertisements led Mayor Peters to approve a contract of the supply department to purchase coal without advertising. The department is authorized by the Mayor to purchase 1,000 tons of semi-bituminous coal at $13.50 per ton alongside the infirmary department at Long Island and the penal institutions department at Deer Island, and one lighter of coal approximately 300 tons, delivered alongside City Hospital at $14 per ton.

Voices Urged Bluebeard to Kill 9 Wives

This is the third chapter of the confession of J. P. Watson, alias Harvey and Harris, who has admitted killing nine of his twenty-five wives. The confession is in the form of answers and questions of District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles.

CHAPTER III.

James P. Watson, alias Harvey and Harris, modern "Bluebeard" in today's instalment of his confession, continues the recital of events following the murder of his first victim, Mary Austin, by drowning, in Lake Coeur d' Alene in Canada.

Pressed for details concerning his murder of subsequent wives, Watson tried to remember the names of several of his supposed victims yet unaccounted for.

Q.—You drowned her in the lake? A.—Yes. At some times those periods would be so exciting I might do more or less.

Q.—Now, you have only one left? A.—And I will get it out for you. If I haven't got that before I go to San Quentin I will get it out for you. I will take thirty days to get it. I will take a directory and try to go down the A's, go down the B's——

Q.—Is there anything in our conversation that made the other woman flash across your mind? A.—No, I don't think so.

Q.—If I tell you, in trying to refresh your memory, that you have told me that the last one, whose name you have not given, is the one you threw into the [illegible] Spokane River, would that assist you at all? A.—No, it is just the name.

Q.—Do you believe that you have made away with women other than the ones you have mentioned now? A.—Unless it was done in a minute which I can't think of or recall, which I hardly think, or unless—you realize this, I have been under an awful strain for a month.

Q.—Yes, I know that. A.—Unless it has been simply that I was so bewildered I couldn't think.

MIGHT BE OTHERS.

Q.—There might be others, but you can't recall? A.—If anything comes up, Mr. Woolwine, I am going to beg of you, in the name of fairness, not to be too harsh, because I have tried to reveal to you some things I didn't want to tell, and after thinking this all over, if you can keep this all just to check for yourself, you see—now, for instance, you might put this Austin into the record, you know—just take that and complete the other.

Q.—Is it possible you may have made away with the woman you gave the money to down to Vancouver? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever communicate with the French girl, whom you married in St. Louis, after you left there? A.—I never did.

Q.—From what time do you figure your mental change? A.—Shortly after the war I began to have trouble; I went all to pieces; there was a year there I went practically all to pieces.

Q.—From what time do you figure your mental change? A.—Shortly after the war I began to have trouble; I went all to pieces.

Q.—Where were you? A.—Calgary and Edmonton.

REFUSED $10,000 FROM ONE.

Q.—How many of these women that you have been with had money whereby you might have profited in case of their death? A.—The ones that are dead, with the exception of one, had practically nothing, and two or three of them not a dollar, while the wealthy ones are living today. One, Mrs. Goldsmith, has $30,000. She said if I wanted to go in the banking business she would give me $10,000.

Q.—And you refused it? A.—Yes.

In an additional confession, made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the bigamist slayer gave startling facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q.—Do you hear voices command you to do or not to do these things? A.—It seems like there is a desire or a command. Oftentimes I would seem to be wrestling with myself whether I was awake or asleep and yet I would realize, not only that I heard voices and things, but it all seemed imaginary.

(He here admits that Alice L. Ludvigson was the first woman he had married bigamously—after his marriage with Katherine Kruse. He was asked about the circumstances of his doing away with her.)

Q.—Had you been guilty up to that time of any other acts of violence? A.—Yes, there were several of those had taken place before this. This Ludvigson was one of the last.

Q.—I think you had done away with some women not on this list. A.—If I can remember it I'll tell you.

Q.—What woman had you killed before the Ludvigson woman? A.—There was this Prior case and Andawartha.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

RIVAL SOX BATTLE HARD FOR FAREWELL GAME OF THE SERIES

PITCHERS HOLD UP LOCALS

urling Corps Not in Best of Shape With Double-Headers Soon to Come

By NICK FLATLEY.

The drive of the West against the ed Sox is getting serious, very rious. Unless the Fenway athletes [illegible] up in their might and thump me of the cocky invaders shortly, ere will be much weeping and ailing, not to mention alibiing in [illegible] neck of the forest.

Our highly-admired Red Sox are [illegible] very seriously up against it in [illegible] of pitchers. They sure [illegible] of sharp-shooting if [illegible] from the West are [illegible] like those that have flitted ross the screen at the local orchard. [illegible] Hoyt is in the hospital still, [illegible] there for quite a time [illegible] are that he will not be available [illegible] hurling purposes until the [illegible] back from the swing [illegible] far parts, in the waning [illegible] of June.

Bullet Joseph Bush has his arm [illegible], but he hasn't all his stuff yet. [illegible] has twice been blasted off the mound in as many starts, and that's no more like Joseph of old than the ice cream parlors are like—well, you know what we mean.

Bush Must Get Back o Hold Sox Up

If the Sox expect to linger around e crest, Bullet Joseph will have to come back to form, and Harry Harper [illegible] likewise have to get into the usiness of pitching once a week or [illegible]. If the lank southpaw had control, he situation of the Red Sox just now would be much happier.

Russell and Pennock are going [illegible], but the spitball artist was wasted after the game had been lost, and Pennock isn't available today, having worked in a tough game Saturday. Looked as if Harper would have a chance to try out this afternoon, unless Bush essays to show that he has a victory against the White Sox in his system.

The Red Sox have a splendid spirit just now, but it takes victory to keep the fires of enthusiasm burning. No better infielding has been seen in these parts that you can watch at the Fenway, and the outfielding is much better than ordinary. The pitching, especially with Walters in there, has been high class. The blonde youth has a faculty of keeping things down on earth—a mighty nifty asset. And Wally Schang is backstopping up to last year's form, and invaluable as a pinch swatter.

Red Sox Have Chance to Even Up Today

Worrying with the future doesn't pay in baseball, however, and the Red Sox have a chance to even up their series with the Chisox this p. m. If the game resembles the three already [illegible] there will be plenty of baseball. [illegible] Kid Gleasons were out in front all the way in the third one, but the Boston Sox engineered a ninth inning [illegible] that nearly wrecked the pastime.

Chaney to Go After Kilbane if He Wins Over Jacks, Tomorrow

By JACK CONWAY.

Andy (Young) Chaney's chances of securing another bout with Johnny Kilbane for the world's featherweight title depend on the showing he makes against Fred Jacks, British featherweight champion, in their twelve-round bout at the Fenway A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night.

Chaney has already engaged in one torrid battle with Kilbane. It was a six-round contest and was held at Philadelphia. When the final blow had been delivered, the newspaper experts at the ringside gave the popular decision to Chaney. The New Yorker then stepped out and kayoed Joey Fox and outpointed Benny Valger and our own Bobby Josephs. These feats prove he is a mighty nifty glove wielder.

Jacks is expected to give the American a torrid battle. The English champion has been fighting with success in New Jersey and Philadelphia rings. He is managed by Joe Woodman and George Lawrence, who have under their direction most of the English and Australian boxers now in this country. Of course they admit Jacks will prick the Chaney bubble tomorrow night.

Bloom Has Long Run of Victories

Roy Green has also arranged two more twelve-round tussles. Joey Connolly of Charlestown will collide with Walter Mohr of Brooklyn. Neither of these youths is a fancy boxer and as a result there should be plenty of spirited milling.

Phil Bloom will oppose Frank Conifrey of New York in the third twelve-round number. Bloom recently returned to this country from England, where he engaged in four winning bouts. Among other things he disposed of Matt Wells in a twenty-round frolic. Since returning to our shores, Bloom has stopped Young Gibbs and Mickey Donley. Bloom has the distinction of having clashed with five champions during [illegible] the career. The titleholders were Matt Wells, Freddie Welsh, Ted (Kid) Lewis, Jack Britton and Benny Leonard.

It might also be well to mention that the Fenway show will be at popular prices, which will give the young men who have made the boxing game what it is today an opportunity to witness the festivities.

McLean Accepts Bout on Mack's Terms

Alex McLean just can't avoid a sporting proposition. So it was only natural he should not lose any time in accepting the terms under which Eddie Mack says he will sign Abe Friedman for a tussle with Terry Martin.

"If Mack wants the contest fought on a winner-take-all basis, it is agreeable to me. I will also cover his $500 side bet. Martin has two decisions to his credit over Friedman and I don't know of any reason why he should not score a third victory.

"I shall be at the American office Wednesday afternoon to close the match with Mack if all of his talk is not pure [illegible]."

PICK TIGERS TO BEAT HARVARD

Princeton Looks for Easy Win Saturday—N. E. College Meet at Tech Field

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

In addition to the New England Intercollegiates at Tech Field this week, there is one other meet in which New England track followers have an interest. It is the clash of Princeton and Harvard track and field teams at Princeton.

Few, however, are in doubt as to what will be the outcome of this affair, for the Tigers soundly defeated Yale and Yale trounced Harvard by a still greater margin. In fact the one [illegible] involved in the meet [illegible] how many of the 117 points Princeton can acquire.

Against the Tigers Yale sprinters got only two third places while against Harvard, Yale sprinters got both firsts, one second and one third. Against Princeton, Yale hurdlers landed but one second place while against Harvard, Yale hurdlers won both first places, one second place and both third places. Murray of Princeton beat Yale's star half milers who took all three places against Harvard. Swede of Princeton captured the one mile against [illegible], while Halsey and Cleveland, both of Princeton, heaved the shot much farther than did their rivals.

Coach Keene Fitzpatrick of the Tigers appears to have exceptionally strong entries in all events except the high jump and pole vault, and except for Harwood of Harvard, who probably will win the latter event, Harvard is not well fortified in either of these numbers. Yale corralled 84½ of the 117 points in defeating the Crimson, and that the Tigers will gather at least 90 appears highly probable.

The team boasting the greater number of first place winners usually wins dual meets, while the team with the greatest secondary strength has the edge in the majority of intercollegiate contests in which a dozen or more teams are entered. Consequently, watch Tech and Bowdoin in the New England Intercollegiates Friday and Saturday.

Tech, in addition to possessing several probable winners, has two, three or four men in almost every event ready to pick up additional points, and Bowdoin, although not [illegible] the [illegible] strength of the Engineers, [illegible] situated as regards possible scorers of second, third or fourth places.

Because of the showing made by Boston College in the Eastern Intercollegiates, where her winning total of points—contrary to the rule—came largely through the scoring of six first places, many are inclined to pick the Maroon and Gold as the probable runner-up. But in the majority of events B. C. has but one man of ability, and against the faster field that these men will face in the New Englands they cannot expect so many first places, and without secondary men to pick up other odd points it appears more than likely that the Maroon and Gold will trail Johnny Magee's Bowdoin team.

4 GAMES TODAY IN SUBURBAN

Warm Weather Gives School Teams Chance to Catch Up on Dates

By TOM POWER.

Four games in the Suburban League were on [illegible] today. Two North Shore League games and numerous other high and prep school teams were also expected to get into action.

Cambridge Latin and Everett High were to meet at the Everett High athletic field in what was expected to be an interesting and exciting contest. Cambridge Latin seem to have struck their winning stride again and have taken their last two games and are close on the heels of Somerville High, the leaders of the league.

[illegible] Field, Newton, was to be the scene of another good game between Malden and Newton High. [illegible] had several new men in the lineup and as a result, their last [illegible] was won in extra innings, was a success.

The other two Suburban League games are at Tech Field, Brookline [illegible] Russell Field, Cambridge. Medford and Rindge Tech play at the [illegible] field while Brookline and Somerville [illegible] at the former. Brookline High has proven to be easy [illegible] weak, [illegible] could be easy for the league leaders.

[illegible] other games on the schedule are as follows: Winthrop at Swampscott, Lynn English at Gloucester, Brown & Nichols at Middlesex, Tufts '23 [illegible] Exeter Academy, Pinkerton at [illegible], Revere at Woburn, Peabody at Wakefield, Worcester North [illegible] St. Mark's School, Nashua at Haverhill, Country Day at Groton, [illegible] Salem at Newburyport, Wellesley at Reading.

BRAVES WORK TO STEM TIDE

First Game of Series Taken by Pirates, Joe Oeschger Weakening Before Attack

Pittsburgh, May 19—The Boston Braves made another effort today to break their losing streak at the expense of the Pirates. Either Dick Rudolph or Dana Fillingim were to pitch, while Manager Gibson sent the venerable Babe Adams to the box. The latter had [illegible] his last three games after winning four in a row and will naturally attempt to put the Braves down for the count. The Braves bit the dust, 7 to 2, in the first game here.

No matter what has been said about Joe Oeschger recovering from the long grind in that twenty-six-inning game against the Dodgers, his work in the initial tilt here would indicate that his arm wasn't right by any means. Several times he appeared to have lost steam altogether, and simply lobbed the ball up to the plate. At other times he got himself into a hole with the batter by giving him three wide ones before putting over a strike and was then forced to groove the ball. This was noticeable in the case of Caton in the fifth inning.

Caton Gets Oeschger in Hole Twice

Caton is a hard man to pitch to, and Oeschger walked him the first time up, and when he came to the plate for his second time at bat there were two on. Again did he get Joe in a hole, and when the brave pitcher grooved one to his liking he pasted it to left field, driving in two runs.

Gowdy was full of pep and stung the ball hard three times, Billy Southworth robbing him of a trip on one of these occasions. He hit the left field fence with a mighty swat the first time up, but Bigbee played the ball off the wall and held Hank at second. This drove the first run in. In the ninth he was robbed of a triple when Boeckel and Maranville refused to run, expecting Carey to make the catch, which he didn't, and Hank was held at first. This filled the bases instead of driving in two runs and putting him on third.

AUSTRALIAN STAR AT CYCLE TRACK OPENING

Alex MacBeth of Australia is the name of the new sprint champion who makes his American debut at the new Revere cycle track next Saturday night against Plant, the Italian title-holder. MacBeth is taking the place of Magin, who refused to ride, and according to Manager Butler, the new star is far and away the best rider to visit this country, which is covering a lot of ground.

We conduct a strictly cash business. We have no charge accounts.

Extra Pants Free $19.75
With Blue Serge Suit to Order

These goods will be found right inside my door with a big card on which is written "This is the goods I make Suit and Extra Trousers to order for $19.75," and that sign has caused more discussion in the tailoring and clothing trade than anything that has been issued this season. I had fifty pieces at the start of the sale and I don't believe I will have an inch by the last of next week, so I advise my old customers to get in early. I will make this serge to your measure whether you are a small dwarf or a giant in stature.

Genuine Blue Serge Suit to Order $19.75
Including an Extra Pair of Trousers

The big business of this week has reduced the fifty pieces of wool worsted bought from M. Axelrod & Sons, 79 Chauncy St., Boston. These goods were sold to me as "seconds," but in my own mind I am satisfied that they were "firsts," that the mill reduced the price on them in order to dispose of excess merchandise. These are all dark, staple colorings, and I personally guarantee them all-wool worsteds.

I offer you what I consider $50 value.

Suit to Your Measure $23.75

No Extra Trousers with these goods.

THIS is the anniversary of the sale, in Paris, in 1852, of the Spanish plunder of Marshal Soult of the art treasures pilfered by Napoleon's great marshal. Murillo's "Conception of the Virgin" brought $117,000, a record price for those days.

THE YOUNG DIANA

An Experiment of the Future

Story of Extraordinary Mystery, in Which the Heroine Holds Key to Youth and Beauty

By Marie Corelli

CHAPTER XXII.

THE swiftness and secrecy of Diana's departure from the Chateau Fragonard was of an almost uncanny nature. There were no affectionate leave takings—and she made no attempt to see Madame Dimitrius who [illegible] unnerved and [illegible] remained in her bedroon [illegible] nor would she accept of any escort to the station [illegible] ing off by way of farewell. She simply left the house, having picked and labelled her own luggage to be sent after her and walked quietly with Dr. Dimitrius through the lovely gardens all in their Summer beauty to the private gate opening out to the high road, from whence it was an easy ten minutes to the station. He was very silent and his usual composure had entirely deserted him.

"I cannot part with you like this," he said in low nervous tones, as she gave him her hand in good-bye. "As soon as my mother recovers from this strange breakdown of hers, I shall follow you. I must see you again——"

She smiled.

"Must you?"

"Of course, I must! I am deeply grateful to you—do not think I can forget your patience—your courage——" He paused deeply moved. "I hate the idea of your travelling all alone to London!"

"Why?" she asked, in an amused tone—"I came here alone!"

"Yes—but that is different—"

"You mean I 'posed' [illegible] then?" she laughed. "Oh, well! Nobody will interfere with a girl returning home from school in Geneva!"

A pained smile crossed his face.

There Are Other Planets

"Yes—you can play that part very well!" he admitted. "But you cannot live alone without someone to look after you."

She gave a slight gesture of indifference.

"No? Well, I will get some dear old lady in reduced circumstances to do that. There are so many of them—all with excellent references. Someone about my own age would do, for after all I am [illegible] forty!"

He uttered an exclamation of impatience.

"Why do you say that?"

"Because it is true," she replied. "According to this planet's time. But"—here her eyes flashed with a strange and almost unearthly lustre—"there are other planets—other countings! And in these, I am—well!—what I am."

He looked at her in mingled doubt and wonder.

"Diana," he said entreatingly, "Will you not trust me?"

"In what way?" she asked with sudden coldness. "What trust do you seek?"

"Listen," he went on eagerly. "My science has worked its will upon you with the most amazing success—but there is something beyond my science—something baffles me—which I cannot fathom! It is in you yourself! You have learned what I have failed to learn—you know what I do not know!"

A smile suddenly irradiated her lovely face—so might an angel smile in giving a benediction.

"I am glad you realize that!" she said, quietly—"For it is true! But what I have learned—what I know—I cannot explain to myself or impart to others."

He Stood Amazed

He stood amazed—not so much at her words as at her manner of uttering them. It was the unapproachable, ethereal [illegible] of her attitude and expression that awed and [illegible]

[illegible] a wordless existence apart from [illegible] altogether apart [illegible] from [illegible] from all [illegible]

[illegible]

"Humanity has too much of itself," she said, slowly. "Its petty ambitions—its miserable wars—its greed of gain and love of cruelty!—what is it worth without the [illegible] soul! In this universe, even on this planet, humanity is not [illegible]

[illegible] I have [illegible] youth [illegible] and will make millions of men [illegible] by your ability to re-establish the [illegible] of youth. And will that make [illegible] I wonder!"

His face grew stern and [illegible] pensive.

"I do not seek happiness," he said. "Not for myself. I hope to make happiness for others. Yet truly I doubt whether happiness is possible in this world except to children and fools."

Said Good-bye

"And now?" she queried.

[illegible] "There is no co[illegible] from it."

"Except in me," she said, smiling. "I am released of both sorrow and joy. I never seem to have known either! I am as indifferent to both as a sunbeam! Good-bye!"

He held her hand and his dark eyes searched her lovely face as though looking for a gleam of sympathy.

"Good-bye," he rejoined, "but not for long. Remember that! Those whom you knew in England will not recognize you now—you will have many difficulties and you may need a friend's counsel. I shall follow you very soon."

"Why should you?" she asked, lightly. His grasp on her hand tightened unconsciously.

"Because I must!" he [illegible] passionately. "Don't you see? You draw me like a magnet—and I cannot resist following my own exquisite creation!"

"You mistake," she said. "I am not your creation! You of yourself can create nothing! I am only a result of your science which you never dreamed of, which you couldn't foresee—and which you will never master! Good-bye!"

She left him at once, walking [illegible] despite his last entreating [illegible] and passing through the private gate to the high road, soon disappeared. Like a man in a [illegible] he stood watching till the last glimpse of her dress had vanished, then with a mist of something like tears in his eyes he realized that a sudden blank loneliness had fallen upon him like a cloud.

"Something I shall never master!" he repeated, as he went slowly homeward. "[illegible] of woman I [illegible]——"

And there [illegible] not daring to pursue them further.

So they parted. [illegible] and [illegible] by the 'success' of his experiment [illegible] satisfied [illegible] started on her journey to England. Never had she received such attention and [illegible] displayed by every [illegible] to wait upon her and assist her in some way or other amused her while it aroused a certain scorn.

"It is only looks that move them!" she said to herself. "The same old tale—youth and beauty and never a care whether I am a good or an evil thing. And yet one is asked to respect men!"

She went on her way without trouble. The chef de gare at Geneva was full of gentle commiseration at the idea of one so young and lovely, a creature travelling alone, and placed her tenderly, as though she were a hot-house lily to be carried 'with care,' in a first-class compartment of 'Dames Seules' where a couple of elderly ladies received her graciously with motherly smiles, and remarked that she was "very young to travel alone." She deprecated their attention with becoming grace [illegible] said very little [illegible] She looked at their wrinkles and baggy throats and wondered what they would say if they knew of Dr. Dimitrius [illegible] went to him [illegible] to make them young and beautiful again? It seemed impossible—they were too far gone! They were travelling to London, however, and she cheerfully accepted their kindly proposal that she should make the journey [illegible]

[illegible] as she [illegible] in London as [illegible] and acting as a [illegible] "I have changed very much in my appearance, but I hope you will still know me as your friend, Diana."

The two ladies with whom chance or fate had thrown her in company turned out to be of the 'old' English aristocracy and were very [illegible] mannered women [illegible] many reverses of fortune and loss of kindred had but drawn them more closely together.

When Hearts Are Trumps

CHAPTER XII.

WHILE [illegible] face Robert Elliot strode towards the ticket window. But before he had reached it there was a sound of [illegible] steps and a voice spoke his name.

"Bab!" he ejaculated, dropping his suitcase and grasping her hand in both of his. "Darling—darling!" he added in a whisper.

"Good-by," the girl gasped. "Oh, Bob, I had to follow you to say it again! Oh, Bob—it is cruel!"—

Tears choked her.

"Hush, dear!" the man warned, noting with satisfaction that at this end of the waiting room there were no spectators. Although it was Sunday afternoon it was still too early for people to be returning from their holiday jaunts. "Bab—Sweetheart—bless you for coming after me! But how did you dare?" And without waiting for her reply, "If we were only starting off on our wedding trip at this moment!"

"Hush!" It was she who uttered the warning now. "You must not talk like that. It will be a long time before we can start off together, for we must wait until—" But, interrupting herself, "never mind about that! Only I had to touch your hand again and had to hear you say that—"

She paused, but he supplied the words. "That I love you," he murmured. "I love you my own—dearest—dearly! If"—glancing around again—"if I could only kiss you—"

She drew away from him in alarm. "No—not here, Bob! You must not!" she exclaimed. "Good-by!"

"Bab, say what I just said! Say 'I love you.'"

"I love you!" she murmured. Then, without another look at him, she hurried from the station, and once more the great door slammed behind her.

A Puzzled Aunt

In the car, Cynthia Paige had noted with consternation her niece's sudden departure.

"Upon my word!" she began. "What under the sun—"

Catching sight of John Brandon's puzzled face, she pulled herself together. She must use her wits to explain her niece's action.

"Oh, I know what Barbara's after!" as if suddenly remembering. "There is a book she wants Robert to send out to her from New York, and she forgot to tell him about it—she is so scatter-brained."

Arthur Paige laughed in his relief. "Is that it? She acted as if she had suddenly taken leave of her senses."

"Yes," Miss Cynthia agreed, "she certainly did. I wonder if she will ever grow up. She is so impulsive, even though"—her tone softening—"she is such a dear child."

"Well, here she comes now!" John Brandon remarked, getting down from the front seat as he saw Barbara appear on the station steps. He greeted her with a smile. "You are too quick for such old folks as we are," he said teasingly. "You jumped right over that front door. Did you know you did that?"

Barbara did not meet his eyes. She was feeling ashamed of her abrupt departure, yet, she told herself fiercely, she would do the same thing over again if she had no other opportunity of saying good-by to the man she loved.

She did not look at her relatives as she took her place on the front seat, and Brandon seated himself beside her. She started in astonishment as Miss Cynthia addressed her cheerfully.

"Well, Barbara, did you catch Robert before he reached his train?" Barbara nodded, surprised to dumbness by her aunt's urbanity.

"It was a bit indiscreet of you to run after him like that, my dear," Miss Cynthia continued. "Still I know you did not realize how queer it looked. But I would not repeat it if I were you. Fortunately such a good friend as Robert Elliot would understand—for he has been like a brother to you and would make allowances. But another man would consider you very Tomboyish or foolish."

A Comforting Message

"Never mind!" Arthur Paige's voice quieted the beating of the girl's heart. "So long as you caught him in time to tell him what you wanted it's all right. All's well that ends well, you know."

His niece looked around at him, her face radiant with affection. "Thank you, Uncle, for not giving me the scolding I deserved."

"You do not deserve a scolding," he assured her.

Her aunt's countenance suggested that there might be a diversity of opinion upon this subject. But Barbara had no intention of courting trouble by taking notice of Miss Cynthia's expression.

Instead, she turned her attention to the man at her side. He was kind to her and she liked him. Moreover, she had a sense of security when with him. In her agitation and distress at parting from Robert, in her certainty of her aunt's disapproval, she felt the calm and reassurance of this man's presence as she had never felt it before.

He asked no questions, he made no demands; he was just his kindly self.

He was a good deal like Uncle Arthur, she decided, as he talked gently, calling her attention to the flowers by the wayside, to the varying shades of green in the fields, to the lights and shadows on the hills.

Little by little her pulse stopped racing madly, and she leaned back in her seat with a low exclamation of contentment. It was June; Robert loved her; John Brandon was her kind friend. Life was very full of good things.

At her soft exclamation, her companion glanced at her inquiringly.

"What does that mean?" she asked.

"Only," with a low laugh, "that I am very happy and am having a beautiful time."

In Days Gone By

"Where can I get a drink in this town?" asked a traveller who had just arrived at a small western settlement. "See that millinery shop over there?" said the native, pointing to a building near the station. "You don't mean to say they sell whiskey in a millinery store?" exclaimed the traveler. "No. I mean that's the only place here where they don't sell it," said the man.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND
Daniels

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

DANIELS

VARIATIONS — Daniel, Dann, Tancock.

RACIAL ORIGIN — Anglo-Saxon.

SOURCE—A biblical given name.

DANIELS is another of those family names which come down to us from the days of the old Anglo-Saxons, though, like other family names, it did not become such until a period after the Anglo-Saxons and the Norman-French had become fused into the English race of medieval and modern times.

The final s on Daniels indicates that it has been shortened from Danielson.

The variation Tancock is the result of a misspelling that crept into the name at some period, either before or after it became a family name, and the habit of the Anglo-Saxons of shortening names to one syllable and then adding a diminutive ending. One of these endings was "cock" or "coch" meaning "little." Tancock, then, translated literally into modern speech, means "little Dan," or, if we should use the modern diminutive, "Danny."

It is impossible to state at just what period "Daniel's son" ceased to be merely descriptive of an individual and was adopted through several generations, thus becoming a family name. A general development of custom took place along this line throughout northern Europe from the twelfth to the fourteenth centuries. The frequency with which Daniel appears as a given name in the old days indicates many unrelated families adopted it simultaneously.

Anecdotes of the Famous

Genius is permitted many eccentricities, some in the matter of work. Flaubert, when in the throes of composition, used to throw off one garment after another, and Alexander Dumas wrote in his shirt sleeves.

Milton composed the greater part of his "Paradise Lost" in a large armchair, with his head thrown back.

Walt Whitman liked the recumbent position, but not in bed. His favorite practice was to climb on to a pile of lumber, lie down flat on his back, and thus think out his ideas.

Alexander Pope, too, did most of his work while comfortably tucked in bed, as also did Mark Twain, who always considered his best work was done while lying in bed, propped up with pillows, and smoking his favorite "corncob."

On the other hand, Thackeray found that he could not think in an empty room, and Sarti, the musician, went even further and composed only in darkness.

SWIFT AND CO. SELLS LOWER

Boston Market Mixed in Movement at Opening; Becomes Weak

After an irregular opening the Boston market weakened and lower prices were the rule all the morning. They reflected the movement in New York. Trading was quiet from the start and neither gains nor losses ruled large. Speculation was confined to comparatively few issues. Coppers, while very dull, were weak and packing issues were heavy. They are still under selling pressure from the West. American Telephone was more in evidence than usual and held a small gain.

Swift & Co. was the weakest packing stock and receded nearly two points within an hour. Among issues to drop a point were Gray & Davis, Mexican Investment and West End. Smaller losses befell Island Creek, Old Dominion, Davis Daly, North Butte, Carson Hill, Ventura and Bigheart.

Stocks to make fractional gains included Boston & Maine, Massachusetts Gas, Elder and Seneca.

Trading began this morning in temporary certificates of the Industrial Oil and Gas Company. It is a Delaware corporation organized to take over going concerns and gas and oil leases in Kansas. It opened at 19 and sold up to 19½.

DULL MORNING ON CURB.

After a very quiet opening the Curb market became exceedingly dull. It was sluggish all the morning. Eureka and Imperial were comparatively active issues at the outset and both were weak. Others to recede at the start were Boston & Montana, United Verde Extension and Albany Divide. Among those to advance were Seven Metals, Universal Silver and Verde Mines.

At the end of an hour Seven Metals was up 2 cents at 11 cents, and Verde Mines 1 cent at 19 cents, while Boston & Montana was off 2 cents at 81 cents, Eureka 12 cents at 86 cents, Imperial 2 cents at 16 cents, and United Verde Extension 1 at 30½.

Moves to Larger Quarters

In announcing removal to new offices at No. 79 Milk street, Secretary Frank S. Wood wrote to the Boston American:

"The New Safety Paper Company has gone up, not up the flue, but up two flights. Its shares have been steadily advancing for the better part of a year and now the company has taken a two years' lease of larger offices on the ninth floor of the Post Office Square Building, having outgrown its office on the seventh floor.

"This is the first step in the line of progressive activity, preparatory to taking over a factory for the manufacture of its product, negotiations for which are now going on.

"This product—White Safety Paper—is protected by pending patent and trade-mark and promises to go a long way toward eliminating an annual loss of $30,000,000 due to check-raising, juggling of figures in books of account, and bad loans upon fictitious collateral due to raised stock certificates."

June Maturities

Corporation maturities in June will total $48,219,910 against $49,035,500 this month and $49,196,800 in June last year. Rail bonds total $12,285,610, public utilities $11,750,000 and industrials $24,184,000.

Dividend Declarations

Ohio Oil Co. declared extra dividend of $2.75 a share in addition to quarterly dividend of $1.25, payable June 30 to stock of record May 29.

Consolidated Cigar Co. declared quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on preferred, payable to June 1 to holders of record May 27.

United States Worsted Company declared initial quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on common, payable July 1 to stock of record June 23. A quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share was declared on second preferred, payable June 19 to stock of record June 15. A quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share was declared on first preferred, payable July 15 to stock of record July 8.

PRICES SAGGED IN NEW YORK

Oils Led the Decline, With Motors, Steels and Equipments Following

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, large losses being shown by a number of issues. Among the weakest were American Woolen common, Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Chandler, Crucible, Lackawanna Steel, Retail Stores, Mexican Petroleum, Pan-American, Punta Alegre, Republic Steel, Studebaker, U. S. Food Products, Cuban-American Sugar, Endicott-Johnson and Vanadium.

They were off from three to almost six points. Endicott Johnson sold at its year's lowest. U. S. Steel had receded more than two points. Oils led the decline, followed by steels and motors. Call money renewed at 7 per cent. The market was quiet, first hour transactions totalling about 160,000 shares.

In the foreign exchange market changes were small. Opening quotations demand sterling $380¾, francs 13.12, lire 19.12 and marks .0215.

OFF AT THE OPENING.

Opening weak, stocks went still lower, selling pressure at the start being greater than before this week. Many of the orders to dispose of securities came from the West. But local unloading was a more important factor. There was no covering of shorts of consequence and the market had no early support of consequence from any quarter. Within a half hour losses ranged from fractions to five points. Motors had an improved tone at the start, but sagged with the rest of the list. This was true of oils and steels. Rails and coppers were steady. Sugar showed strength at the outset, but were affected by the recessional. Liberty Bonds sank to new low record figures. Sales of Liberty and Victory issues on Tuesday approximated $30,000,000.

LIQUIDATION IS STEADY.

While liquidation is on a comparatively small scale now, it is steady. The public continues to sell securities. Brokerage houses around Wall street report quiet but consistent buying by big speculators and important financial interests. The latter are not apt to render any support to the market as long as they can pick up the best of securities at bargain prices. The present is offering opportunities to capitalists that are not likely to to be recurrent for a generation. Liquidation is said to have been already the most thorough on record, but no one knows where and when it is going to stop. The public is scared. A year ago it was intoxicated by blind confidence. The breakdown of transportation facilities, high prices of everything, lack of credit, labor troubles and talk of a panic has caused general apprehension.

Corporation Earnings

The McCorry Stores Corporation reports an increase of $160,643 in April sales, compared with the corresponding 1919 month, and an increase of $685,527 for the first four months of this year.

Net profits for the General Motors Corporation during the first 1920 quarter approximated $26,500,000 before Federal taxes, against $24,000,000 for the first quarter of last year.

The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad reports for 1919 net corporate income of $7,283,639, against $7,284,832 for 1918.

For 1919 the Eastman Kodak Co. reports net after Federal taxes of $18,326,188, which is equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $91.78 a share on $19,583,400 common, against $14,051,939, or $70.02 a share on $19,583,400 common in 1918.

Exchange Trust Co. Thanked

The Exchange Trust Company has received from Colonel Adam Gifford, New England commander of the Salvation Army, a letter reading:

"Please accept my heartfelt thanks for your splendid co-operation in helping us to get before the people the announcement of our Home Service Appeal by means of your advertisement in the newspapers.

"The method you have adopted is especially appreciated in view of the fact that we have found it scarcely possible to expend money for first page advertising. Furthermore, the spirit that prompts such friends as yourself to help us by receiving contributions at your institution is thoughtfulness that the Salvation Army most certainly cannot forget."

Will Inspect Cactus Mines

Albert H. Cutter, of Fynney & Cutter, investment bankers at No. 149 Tremont street, is on a trip to the Pacific Coast, accompanied by a party of capitalists. While away these gentlemen will be the guests of Joseph F. Nonzel, president and general manager of the Cactus Nevada Silver Mines Company. They will visit and inspect the Cactus Mines in Nye county, Nevada.

Are We Facing AN OIL CRISIS?

This debatable question, visualizing market action with future production, has been carefully analyzed by experts and the facts set forth in comprehensive form for oil investors.

We cordially invite you to come Uptown and let us show you; it is a pleasure whether you buy or not.

then see us. You will more readily see just how much we can save you, as well as how much cosier we can furnish your home.

We Cordially Invite

You to visit our Graphonola Shop, where, at your leisure, you may select any records you may desire, or hear the finest instruments the market affords. Can you afford to be without music in your home since our payments are so comfortable that you can hardly feel the paying?

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

It Is Time to Challenge the Lawless Blockade of Russia

Secretary Colby is quoted as saying that he sees "no prospect of the resumption of trade with Russia so long as the present Soviet Government insists upon political recognition as a precondition."

It would be interesting to know by what provision of law the privilege of trade with Russia is denied to any American desirous of engaging in it.

The United States, though it has practiced war and given political and military recognition to upstart governments for a time foisted upon Russian territory by foreign money and foreign bayonets, has never declared war upon Russia.

So far as technical status goes, Russia is still the friendly nation that she has been since the Empress Catherine, in the days of our Revolution, heaped money and honors upon our first great sea captain, Paul Jones; and since Nicholas I., during our Civil War, sent the fleet of Admiral Lessowsky into New York harbor with orders to put itself under President Lincoln's command in case Great Britain openly supported the Confederacy.

For six months that fleet stood by, and it sailed away only after England had backed down.

The present Government of Russia is certainly as much the creation of the Russian people and as fully entitled to recognition and friendly relations as was the autocracy of the late Czar, with which we not only traded but exchanged fulsome compliments.

No President and no Secretary of State would have dared five or even four years ago to say to American exporters: "You shall not trade with Russia or Russians under Nicholas II." An attempt by the Executive Department to decree a blockade of Russia then would quite certainly have evoked threats of impeachment.

By what warrant, then, is trade with Russia forbidden NOW?

We are amazed that the large number of American manufacturers who say they have offers of contracts from Petrograd and that they fear lest British or German or Scandinavian competitors should forestall them, since numbers of these are reported to be in Russia arranging trade relations, are not standing on their rights and challenging every interference with those rights.

Until the Congress declares a state of war with Russia, they have as good a right to trade with the Soviet Government or with individual Russians as with the government or people of Holland, Brazil or Japan.

The blockade set up against Russia has nothing behind it but sheer, arbitrary might. It is as lawless as a gunman's hold-up. And the participation of President Wilson in it is as gross an act of usurpation as if he were to order the American army to engage in a private war upon the Congress or people of the United States.

We have all been somnolent, supine and timid far too long under this one man's spread of unauthorized power.

Perhaps necessary in war, certainly yielded to willingly then, it now is no longer patriotic because it prolongs into actual if not technical peace an autocracy hostile to the traditional freedoms of American citizenship.

The time has come to break the spell.

The time has come to stand up for the principles and liberties of true Americanism.

Special Interests Opposing Rent Profiteering Bill

The news is astounding that, in the face of the present profiteering in rent and the distress of the public therefrom, a bill reported by a legislative committee giving the cities and towns power to seize by condemnation buildings in which profiteering occurs or to erect new buildings for the purpose of housing people, should receive in the House so much opposition and should receive a reading by so small a vote as such a bill received yesterday.

Of course, the special interests are opposed to this bill just as they were opposed to the Constitutional Amendment which permits such a law.

We expected to hear the familiar cry that this proposed law was Socialistic. If every special interest affected by general laws providing for the welfare of the general public continues to cry Socialism against them, we shall soon have the people believing that everything that is good and worth while IS Socialistic.

Members of the House of Representatives would do well to attend the sessions in which this bill is going to take its further readings.

Measles and Whooping Cough

The boards of health have notified the public that there has been an outbreak of measles and whooping cough which needs considerable care on the part of parents.

Dr. Woodward, health commissioner of Boston, urges parents to have their children examined by physicians on the least sign of something unusual in their physical condition, especially if they develop a cough and have watery eyes. Dr. Woodward especially cautions the children against using a common drinking cup in school, but he says that there is no need of them staying away from school.

Our Boston Dry Dock

Do the citizens of Boston realize that Boston has the only dock in America large enough to hold the great ship Leviathan, once the German liner Vaterland?

Our new drydock cost a pretty penny and we are glad to be getting some advertising out of it now, and we hope we shall get something more substantial still.

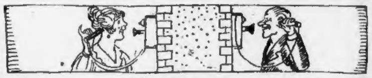
More Truth Than Poetry



Mated Idealists

By S. E. KISER

He speaks—at the telephone:

LET'S go to a picture show;
It's the cheapest thing we can do,
And there we can sit in the dark, you know,
And be close to each other, too;
We can think of love,
While the man above
Is working the faithful reel,
And I'll tickle your ear, to assure you, dear,
How eagerly fond I feel.

TO the movie, love, let us hie,
For there we may linger alone,
And your warm little, soft little hand may lie
All sweaty within my own;
My soul may speak
To your soul, your cheek
May even touch mine, my sweet,
And, with nothing to pay, we will love away
Till it's time to go out and eat.

THE picture, perhaps, will thrill,
Or not, as the case may be,
But the place will be dark and we'll both keep still,
And that will be sweet to me;
Five years ago
We were wed, but, oh,
Your nearness will make me glad;
Trust, dearest one, as you've always done
In the meetings that we have had.

LET us go to the movie, dear;
We can sit in the darkness there;
Your presence will fill my soul with cheer,
And you may be free from care;
I'll not forget,
And you need not let
A fear creep into your breast;
Put your work away; come and spend the day
As my dutiful weekly guest.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.—We are the collar girls of Troy, and we wonder if you will say a word for us. Some of us are so close in in the centre of rooms that we get neither sunlight nor air. Fans are kept going churning the same old hot air all the time in overheated rooms, and it sickens us to breathe it, and our lungs are starved for want of real fresh air. If we open a door the boss will come along and say in a loud, rough voice: "Close that door!" We are afraid to say anything.

Now you sing of birds and cats and dogs and all creation. Why not sing of us? We read what you said some time ago about the high price of collars and how you threatened to go without them. We hope you won't, because you looked horrid without a collar, although with one on you are passing fair, if your picture is an index of your looks.

If you will help us to get fresh air for our lungs we will name a brand of collar "K. C. B.," which will be just as finished as your column.

Anyway, we want some of God's sunlight and free fresh air as we go through life singing the "Song of the Shirt." Yours for Fair Play,

THE COLLAR GIRLS OF TROY.

DEAR COLLAR Girls of Troy.
IF SUNLIGHT.
AND FRESH air.
AND GENTLE winds.
AND SPRING.
AND GROWING grass.
AND BUDDING trees.
AND SINGING birds.
WERE MINE.
BEYOND THE share.
THAT I may have.
FOR JUST myself.
I'D TAKE them all.
AND GO to Troy.
AND THERE.
I'D HAVE the sun.
LIGHT UP the place.
WHERE YOU'RE closed in.
AND HAVE the air.
GIVE LONGER life.
TO STARVING lungs.
AND HAVE the wind.
COME WHISPERING in.
WITH LURING tale.
OF WHENCE it comes.
AND WHENCE it goes.
AND HAVE the Spring.
TELL YOU of him.
AND OF his love.
AND HAVE the grass.
AND BUDDING trees.
BRING PROMISES.
OF PICNIC days.
AND HAVE the birds.
SING CHEERFUL song.
THIS WOULD I do.
BUT AS I can't.
I'LL WRITE for you.
AN HUMBLE plea.
UNTO YOUR boss.
AND SAY to him.
YOU MUST have air.
YOU GIRLS of Troy.
WHOSE HANDS have shaped.
THE FEARFUL yokes.
THAT MEN must wear.
AND WEARING them.
MAKE NO complaint.
BUT LOVE you.
FOR THE yokes you've made.

I THANK you.

RAIN MUSIC BIDS THE FLOWERS AWAKE

By Winifred Black

TIP, tap, spitter, spatter, there it is at the window—the rain.

Look, how the clear drops run down the pane, as if they were racing with each other to get to the bottom. What a good time they do have, being rain, the little drops. Sometimes it seems almost as if they realized how much good they do the grateful earth.

The blessed, soothing, gentle, kindly rain—the rain that calls to the crocuses, "Wake up, little sisters, you've slept long enough."

The rain that whispers to the violets and tells them that it is time for them to open their blue eyes and smile upon the weary world again.

Cowslips by the streams, yellow violets along the hillsides, blue flags by the marshy edge of a quiet pool. There they are at the root of the old oak tree—anemone, wake-robin, Spring beauty — a goodly company in gay apparel.

And sweet and sweet and sweet—the air!

Oh, to lay your tired cheek against the moss that is so green and fresh and forget for a little the fret and fume of all these unimportant things we make ourselves believe important.

Oh, to rest, breast to breast, with an ancient tree that has stood through all the storms, brave and stoical, and now blossoms in tender green like the veriest youth in all the grove.

Oh, to stand at the very top of some verdant hill and let the Spring wind blow the cobwebs out of a disordered and weary brain.

How blind we are, how deaf and dumb and dull we human beings, gathering ourselves into cities, shutting out all the beauty and the glory that is ours by inheritance.

Do you remember the little curve in the brook that always overflowed in the Spring. What an argosy of ships set sail from that particular port after every storm. Did you mark your name on a chip and send it forth to sail the stormy seas? I did.

The water wasn't over a foot deep, but oh, with what catchings of the breath we watched the launching of our little fleet, dear girl, you who always sailed your boat with mine. Sweet seas you found, and happy harbors, long and long ago. I'm glad to know it. My little boat was caught in the eddy, and never made the green and smiling shore at all. Ah, well, we cannot all come home from sea triumphant.

To the Editor

Thanks From Union

Editor Boston American:

I have been directed by the Brockton Central Labor Union to convey their acknowledgment of the efforts of the Boston American to supply accurate information concerning the proposed legislation desired to protect mothers and children during the maternity period. Members of our organization have watched with satisfaction your loyal support of the petition of Edna Lawrence Spencer, as embodied in the bill known as Senate No. 200, and we desire to express our appreciation and thanks for your loyal championship of this bill.

Citizen of the United States

Editor Boston American:

A recent edition of your paper contained a communication from "Tech 1918" relative to the delegate sent by Technology to the conference of College Hoover Clubs being a citizen of Nova Scotia. Mr. J. O. Beasley, who represented Tech, is a citizen of the United States, his ancestors for several generations have been Americans and his home is now at Fairmount, Ind. As I know him, he is one of the truest types of all-American men. Unfortunately the report was published in the Boston papers that the Technology delegate was not a citizen of the United States, which was a mistake.

GOOD CHANCE HERE FOR AIRSHIP TRADE.

By Lt.-Col. L. H. Drennan

Air Service, Northeastern Department.

AN aviation industry located in New England, with easy access to the sea, is a project which should interest the Chamber of Commerce. The establishment of a municipal flying field here would encourage manufacturers to come to this section, where planes especially suitable for use in South America could be developed.

In South America the people are taking to flying like a duck to water, and agents of the British and French governments are already scrambling for this lucrative market.

While all types of planes are not suitable for operation in New England, many of the present types are, but it is believed that great improvement can be made over the types now on the market. There are enough good flying men in New England to furnish a market for a considerable industry, provided the airplane is suitable for landing in the small restricted fields in this section or a large field provided. An ideal spot would be on the Strandway, South Boston.

The progress of aviation, since the armistice of November 11, 1918, has been very peculiar.

England Busy

England recognized that her insularity had ceased to be a fact, because an aerial invader could swoop down on her unprotected cities without the slightest resistance from land or sea forces. Her policy was, therefore, to support aviation with men and resources to the fullest extent—recognizing that her strength depended not so much on the number of ships available, but the facilities for building more ships. Her commercial salesmen have therefore penetrated all parts of the world in order to create a market for English aircraft. The activities of these men and their organizations are supported in part by the Air Ministry.

France found herself in practically the same position, and, although an Air Ministry has not been created in France, very important government assistance is being given to aircraft manufacturers, and she is one of England's two serious competitors in the field of commercial aeronautics.

Germany, bound by an agreement to cease aircraft manufacture for six months after the signing of the peace, engaged in the most feverish sort of a building program in the interval between the armistice and the present time—which activity will continue until the definite conclusion of the peace negotiations, when her building activity will cease for six months. She has actually progressed further in the field of commercial aeronautics than any other nation. Dirigible balloon routes have been established between principal cities, which run on schedule, for a fixed consideration.

America Slow

The United States, feeling that she still enjoyed a certain isolation in spite of the great strides made in rapid transportation, both terrestrial and aerial, saw fit to abandon her aircraft industry to its own resources. The Air Service desired to encourage builders by getting out a new series of fighting aircraft to take the place of the aircraft purchased during the war from our allies. Such ships as scouts, two-seater fighters, day bombers and ground attack ships had to be developed to give us a well-rounded Air Service. An appropriation of fifteen million dollars was required for this program and was refused by Congress. Thus, practically nothing was done in American aeronautics for the year following the armistice by the Air Service.

Manufacturers, however, were not entirely idle, and a number of commercial types have been developed in spite of the policy of the government, but few compared with other nations.
